جوردان تايمر يومية سياسيَّة كَصدر بالْانجَلْيْرَية عن المؤسسة الصحفية الأردنية «الراي»

post as acting supreme religious judge," Petra said. Sheik laabari passed away last week at the age of 82. His Majesty King Hussein delegated Sheikh Ahdeen 10 attend the funeral of Sheikh Jaabari and to convey has condolences 10 the Jaahari family. Jordan has the responsibility for Muslim shrines in East Jerusalem. Jordan recently handed over the administration of Muslim haly sites in the West Bank to the Palestinians but maintained its role vis-a-vis Jerusalem.

Volume 18 Number 5743

Princess Glav

5:5: A6512

neuntect.

AMMAN MONDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1994, JUMADA ALAWAL II, 1415

Price: Jordan 150 Fils

U.S. 'will not wait' for U.N. okay if Iraq renews threat

Security Council bars troop movements; Iraq rejects U.N. move as face-saving for U.S.; Russia wants to end rift with U.S.

Combined agency dispatches

IF IRAQI troops threaten Kuwait again, the United States will not wait for the green light from the United Nations before striking, Secretary of State Warren Christopher said Sunday.

"We feel we have all the necessary authority under the U.N. to take action against (Iraq). I think that next time we'll probably not wait. We will take action, strong ac-tion, against (Iraq)," Mr. Christopher said in an interview with NBC News.

Mr. Christopher's comments came on the beels of the U.N. Security Council tote late Saturday approving 1 resolution harring Baghdad - rom deploying elite Republian Guard units in southern -raq and from reinforcing its nilitary capacity on the Luwaiti border.

The 15-member council nanimously adopted Resolution 949 after intense that's threatening to negotiations in which Russia threatened to veto the measure unless the United States agreed to include a reference to Moscow's efforts to win Iraqi recognition of Kuwaiti

President Bill Clinton welcomed the resolution. "The Security Council has made clear that it will not permit Iraq to use its military to threaten its neighbours or U.N. operations in Iraq," Mr. Clinton said in a statement sbortly after the vote.

Mr. Christopher said the council's action Saturday, coupled with existing U.N. resolutions, gives the U.S. administration the go-ahead to take action against Iraq.

We feel we have adequate authority under existing re-solutions and we feel (Iraq has) been put on notice by this new resolution: that (Iraq) should not, once

The latest crisis with Iraq was triggered Oct. 7 when Washington charged that Baghdad had deployed 80,000 troops — including its formidable Republican Guard - near the Kuwaiti border, reviving fears that it was about to repeat its 1990 invasion of the oil-rich emi-

Iraqi troops began pulling back last week, but President Clinton has continued the massive huildup of U.S. troops to the Gulf region projected to reach some

The United States also has 19 vessels in the Gulf and the Red Sea, including four warships and a suhmarine that can fire more than 200 Tomahawk cruise missiles at

Mr. Christopher said Iraq has taken action to haul its troops back, but the U.S. administration is not calling it that it's finished yet. Iraq does seem to be moving in the right direction," Mr. Christopher said.

However, the United States is still concerned that some elements of the Iraqi forces are not completely withdrawn. Mr. Christopher said there were still two brigades around Nasiriyah in southern Iraq.

Despite the crisis in the Gulf in the past 10 days, not a single Iraqi soldier has come anywhere near the Kuwaiti border, U.N. ohservers patrolling the frontier sav.

Some reports last week, never confirmed, said the 80,000 Iragi troops who threatened Kuwait had got to within 10 or 20 kilometres of the frontier.

But General Krishna Thapa, commander of the 1,000-(Continued on page 7)

King, Rabin and Peres meet in Amman in accelerated moves

U.S. Navy flight-deck personnel pull a cart loaded with missiles aboard the USS George Washington off the Kuwaiti

Combined agency dispatches

coast (AFP photo)

AMMAN - His Majesty King Hussein met on Sunday with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres on progress in the Jordanian-Israeli peace negotiations, which were said to have made major strides.

The summit was underway at Al Hashemiyeh Palace, international news agencies reponed.

Their talks were to focus on the two thorniest issues in the Jordan-Israeli peace talks of drawing up a common border and sharing water re-sources, an Israeli official said in occupied Jerusalem.

Earlier a senior Jordanian official told AFP Jordan was ready to sign a peace treaty

BONN (Agencies) — A jubilant Chancellor Helmut Kohl claimed victory in Germany's general election on Sunday

hined opposition parties.

all-German election," he told party workers at the headquarters of his Christian Democratic (CDU) Party in majority and we will continue sister party, The Christian Social Union (CSU), Iosi

ground compared with their showing in the election soon after unification in 1990.

while their Liberal Free

Democrat (FDP) coalition partners suffered substantial

But the coalition's comhined result looked set to he around 49 per cent against the government coalioon."

"This is certainly a viable

The CDU and its Bavarian

Bonn.

with Israel in the next two months.

The official said peace will not be signed without Israel withdrawing from occupied Jordanian territory and Jordan getting its share of water resources. But he said "everything leads to believe that Jordan will be able to obtain satisfaccember and if it does, sign a peace treaty with Israel before the end of the year."

The official said the Amman meeting allowed talks to move beyond their normal framework by "hypassing technical details and concentrating on the roots of the

The official, who requested anonymity, said his optimism was based on progress made tween King Hussein and Mr. Rahin in Amman last Wednesday.

After the meeting also attended by Mr. Peres, Mr. Rahin said it had marked a hig step towards peace."

"I hope that by the end of the year a peace agreement will be signed and I hope that that," Mr. Rabin said. No official statement was available on the visit by press

Officials quoted by Reuters said the talks were attended by His Royal Highness Crown Prince Hassan and other top aides.

Things are developing quickly in the direction of a peace treaty and political decisions by the leadership of the two countries are needed," one Jordanian official told Reuters.

"The main gaps in the draft treaty both sides are working on deal with details related to the core issues of the quantities of water Jordan is entitled to, details over the delineation of borders and related security measures.

Israel Radio said that Israel and Jordan were "on the hrink" of reaching a treaty and that a declaration on having reached one could result of Sunday's meetings.

An official told the Associated Press that while talks with Jordan had reached a "final phase," it was uncertain whether all issues would be resolved on Sunday.

Mr. Rahin and Mr. Peres arrived in Jordan by helicop-

-:: raeli troops 📜 ill Palestinian

· EBRON (R) — Israeli · ops shot dead a 24-year-old alestinian who allegedly re-- ised an order to halt on anday in the occupied West ank, according to military r nad Al Darbeb was looking or archaeological artifacts ear Hebron when troops en-5 _55 a 325 puntered him. The military 30 : 30 of Cources said he apparently ried to fice and when he cfused an order to stop, aldiers opened fire.

Finns say yes' to EU

HELSINKI (AFP) - Finns oted Sunday to join the suropean Union (EU), with 17.4 per cent supporting nembership and 42.6 per cent opposing it, according to esults from the state compuer centre after 80.3 per cent of all votes were counted.

Egypt, Syria and Bulf states to meet

AIRO (R) — The Foreign ninisters of the eight Damasus Declaration states --gypt, Syria and the six Gulf Arab countries — will meet a Cairo on Tuesday to disuss the tension between Iraq and Knwait, Foreign Ministry ources said. It will be the irst meeting of the states ince Iraq started moving roops towards the Iraqi borler in late September.

Business team arrives from Cairo

Lyco MMAN (J.T.) — A large An Chamber of Commercial Commerci an Chamber of Commerce n Sunday on a five-day trade tission to Jordan for talks nd meetings with Jordanian overnment officials and tembers of the private sector usiness community in Jor-

Vohlk arrives

MMAN (J.T.) - Demark's Vice Minister for oreign Affairs Henrik ohlk arrived in Amman anday on a four-day official sit to Jordan during which will meet Jordanian offials and businessmen to disiss bilateral relations. Possilities of cooperation among anish experts, consultants id industrial companies and eir Jordanian and Palestian counterparts will be disssed during the visit (see : - 1 lee 12).

Self-rule talks resume Tuesday

TEL AVIV (Agencies) -Israel will pick up the negotiations with the Palestinians in Cairo on Tuesday, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rahin's spokesman announced Sun-

Mr. Rabin suspended the talks on the spread of auton-omy to the West Bank and Palestinian elections last Tuesday after the Islamic Resistance Movement, Hamas,

The announcement from spokesman Oded Ben Ami came after a cabinet meeting agreed to return to the negotiating table, hut gave no

An official communique said: "The cahinet will con-took a soldier hostage.

tinue to conduct negotiations with the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) and the Palestinian National Authority (PNA) on the basis of the agreements signed until fight a war of annihilation against organised terrorists." it said.

que said the government ex-pected PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat and the PNA to "act with resolve to do everything in their power ... against those who carry out

"And at the same time will

Mr. Rabin had demanded the PLO "smash" Hamas before returning to negotiations, the radio reported. But the official communiacts of terror and whose purpose is to sow murder and destruction and to bring a halt to the peace process. Mr. Rahin, who chaired Sunday's weekly cabinet session, has warned Mr. Arafat to choose between peace with Israel and peace with Hamas.

The spokesman said the closure of the Gaza Strip would be lifted on Monday. The measure has prevented Gazans from entering Israel since last Tuesday when Hamas announced it had kidnapped 19-year-old Nachshon Waxman. Hamas tried to swap the corporal for 200 Palestinian prisoners, but the army raided the fundamentalists'

West Bank, hideout on Fri-(Continued on page 7)

Gazans stage violent protest

GAZA (Agencies) — Hundreds of Islamic students protested violently near a Jewish settlement in Palestinian-. ruled Gaza on Sunday and Israeli troops withdrew from a checkpoint to avoid a confrontation. The Palestinian National Authority (PNA) increased security all over the strip in anticipation of fresh protests hy Hamas supporters against the continued detention of hundreds of activists from the Last week's kidnappine and killing of Israeli soldier Nachshon Waxman hy Hamas has polarised Palestinian politics, creating a hiner divide between the self-rule authority and Palestinian opposition groups led by Hamas. The authority is still holdine about 300 Hamas supporters it rounded up during the search for Waxman. An official on Saturday said most of them would be released soon but those with ties to Hamas' military wing Oassam would be held for more questioning.

Witnesses said students from the Islamic University. a Hamas stronghold, protested — violently when Palestinian police stopped 211 buses carrying them from the south of the Strip to Gaza

No reason was given for the police action, but on Saturday students from the university led a mass protest

10 Gaza central prison. "We have orders to stop any demonstration in Gaza today." a senior police officer told AFP amid unconfirmed reports the authority tipped off the Israelis about where the hostage was hidden.

Main streets in the city were sealed off to truffic Sunday. The students on Sunday threw stones at an Israeli military checkpoint on the main north-south road in the

(Continued on page 7)

Kohl claims narrow election victory opposition Social Democrats (SPD), radical Greens and the reformed Communist Party of Democratic Socialism (PDS). after computer projections Finance Minister Theo gave his centre-right coalition Waigel said the CDU/CSU a narrow lead over the comhad achieved its goals. The deciding point is that 'We have won the second we have a majority and that we can govern," he said. The result was particularly frustrating for SPD leader Rudolf Scharping, the fourth

SPD challenger to be defeated hy Mr. Kohl. Mr. Scharping, 46, saw his party's share of the vote rise to around 37 per cent from 33.5 in 1990 while his wouldbe coalition partners, the Greens, were headed hack into parliament with around ousted in 1990. Mr. Scharping implicitly admitted defeat, but stressed his party was now a real six per cent after being contender for power.

Visibly satisfied with the result Mr. Scharping said his party had not made such strong gains since the mid-1960s and he warned that the centre-right government was now "a coalition of losers."

Mr. Scharping said the SPD would replace Mr. Kohl's ruling coalition "in 1998 or earlier," and that his party would be "a powerful force which can no longer be ignored in Germany."

The combined leftist vote fell tantalisingly short of that of the centre-right incumbents.

FDP leader and Foreign Minister Klaus Kinkel, whose future had hung in the ba-lance because of his party's disastrous performance in regional and European electios, was clearly relieved the FDP was headed for around 6.4 per cent, although this was well down on its 11 per cent in 1990.

'The result at national level is one we can live with," the said. 'I am very

The bad news for Mr Kinkel was the FDP appeared to have crashed out of three more regional state parliaments in separate elections in Saar in West Germany and in Mecklenburg-Vorpommern and Thuringia in the east on Sunday. Both television stations predicted the PDS would win three direct seats in eastern Germany, which would entitle it under German election law to claim its full share of seats even if, as looked certain, this was helow five per

PDS parliamentary leader Gregor Gysi described the result, with his party likely to get around four per cent. as historic. "Everyone tried 10 prevent us from entering the new parliament, and I believe we have come through against this, also against a significant part of the media," he said. This one can describe as around 47.4 per cent for the Speakership race narrows down to Masri, Srour and controversy

By Ayman Al Safadi Iordan Times Staff Reporter

AMMAN — The contest for the speakership of the Lower House of Parliament was reduced to a two horse race this week when all but one candidate withdrew their candidacy in favour of incumbent Taher Al Masri. After a long period of wbat some deputies described as the indecisiveness of Mr. Masri on whether he wanted to run for a second term, the tables turned Saturday when it was announced that the former prime minister "responded to the wish of his colleagues" and decided to run for the speakership. The announcement came after Islamic Action Front (IAF) candidate Abdullah Al Akaileh, independent Islamist candidate Abdul Razzaq Tubeishat and independent candidate Abdul Karim Al Dughmi withdrew in favour Mr. Masri.

Accordingly, the battle for the speakership will be contested when the 12th parliament convenes on Oct. 22 by Mr. Masri and his colleague in the 12-member Democratic National Coalition Sa'd Hayel Srour.

both candidates could count on a considerable amount of support and it would be bard to predict the outcome of the elections before the 80 deputies cast their secret hallots when the House convenes. Parliamentary sources told the Jordan Times that Mr. Masri had secured the support of 13 independent depunes and enough assurances that the 16-member LAF bloc would support his bid for reelection. Dr. Tubeishat, a deputy speaker of the House, said Mr. Masri had been promised the support of over 30 deputies who issued a statement Saturday announcing his candidacy.

He said the decision of

Saad Hayel Al Scour

Masri stemmed from their belief that he can effectively lead the House in the coming era, especially that he demonstrated his ability to do so in his first term.

IAF spokesman Hamzeh Mansour told the Jordan Times the bloc decided to withdraw its candidate after it was clear that he could not win. Though he would not explicitly confirm that the IAF would vote in favour of Mr. Masri, Mr. Mansour said he believed the incumhent stood better chances of winning the elections.
"We will vote in favour of the candidate whom we deem to be better equipped to act in compliance with democracy and shoura," said Mr. Mansour, adding that the former Prime Minister decided 10 reverse his decision not to run for a second term when it become clear he could win those deputies to support Mr. the elections.

> Not so, say supporters of Mr. Srour. A deputy who requested anonymity said Mr. Masri. who went on the record last month as saying he would not seek a second term, had wanted to run throughout this period but was first waiting to be promised the support of centrist deputies. He said that Mr. Masri failed to do that Saturday when the National Bloc, led hy Deputy Jamal Al Khreisha, informed him that it could not support him and his own democranic front sent him a similar message.

But, according to parliamentary sources, a 13-member group of independent deputies pushed for his candidacy late Saturday and they succeeded in having Mr. Dughmi, Mr. Tubeishat and Dr. Akaileh withdraw in his

Mr. Masri also failed to win the support of his own National Democratic Alliance, the majority of whose memhers told him they were committed to their previously democratically reached decision to support Mr. Srour, sources within the coalition said. The coalinon voted last month in favour of the candidacy of Mr. Srour after Mr. Masri said he was not interested in running for a second term. The coalition then took a vote on selecting its candidate in which Mr. Masri took part in the voring. The majority supported Mr. Srour against the other deputv who wanted to run, Ali Abul Ragheb.

So when Mr. Masri changed his mind, the coalition did not, insisting instead on going all the way in support of Mr. Srour, sources within the coalition said. Mr. Srour told the Jordan

Times that "nothing has (Continued on page 7)

U.N. says it may have to quit Somalia under hostile fire

cies) - Secretary-General Boutros Gbali bas recommended ending the ill-starred billion-dollar-a year U.N. op-eration in Somalia next out was to be carried out in March 31, but said the 15,000-strong force would bave to be given naval and air reinforcements in case it has to pull out under fire.

In the worst case scenario, UNOSOM (the U.N. operation in Somalia) forces would have to withdraw in face of hostile action by Somali factions and/or widespread handitry, which would prevent the use of commercial air and sea transport." he said in a report over the weekend to the Security

"I have accordingly approached several member states who possess the naval and air assets required to reinforce UNOSOM during the critical withdrawal phase, whether or not such withdrawal is carried out under hostile conditions.

Dr. Ghali said a secure and orderly withdrawal would take hetween 60 and 120 days, depending on security conditions.

The reinforcements would have to include naval elements with fire support and sealift capabilities, as well as military aircraft.

Italy was prepared to provide five or six ships and 300 to 400 Marines, and additional contributions were ex-

Dr. Ghali did not say which other countries he had approached. But one source said the United States, which wants the U.N. operation to be wound up at the end of this year instead of next March, was one of them and was considering the request for ships and planes.

A large United States-led task force began arriving in Somalia in December 1992 to protect humanitarian operations in the famine-stricken country and tried to restore some semblance of order amid widespread chaos and factional fighting.

The United States handed over to the United Nations in May 1993 after suffering casualties in clashes with Somali gunmen, hut the last American troops did not leave until March this year.

Dr. Ghali conceded the U.N. presence "has had limited impact on the peace security in the face of continuing interclan fighting and national contingents to act to chaos.

pened in the past, he said it would be especially important to maintain unified comhostile circumstances.

"Any unilateral attempt by troop-contributing states to protect or extricate their contingents will be more likely to deepen the problem than to solve it," be said.

"In such delicate situations, a breakdown in command and control can prove While hoping the various Somali factions might yet agree on setting up a transitional government and civil and administrative institutions, the secretary-general warned: "It cannot be ex-cluded that, following the withdrawal of UNOSOM, Somali will plunge again into anarchy and chaos, the responsibility for which will rest squarely on the shoulders of

Clash in Somaliland

A Somali militia commander was killed and four government soldiers were wounded when troops tried to capture the rebel-held airport at Hergeisa, capital of the self-proclaimed Somaliland republic, U.N. sources said in Mogadishu on

The sources said Somaliland President Mohammad Egal had confirmed the clash along the road linking Hergeisa with the port of Berbera. They quoted him as saying he had ordered his troops to capture the airport from the rebels, who have held it for the past year.

The Somaliland republic occupied the northern half of Somalia - the area which was a British protectorate before independence. It has hroken away from the warring factions in the south, a former Italian colony, and says its decision is irrev-

Somali wariord Ali Mahdi Mohammad said on Saturday he would refuse to attend a peace conference called by his main rival, Mohammad Farah Aideed.

Mr. Mahdi, whose 1991 civil war with General Aldeed ruined Somalia, prompting foreign intervenoperations and the U.N. mission to try to reestablish civil government, said the confer-Warning against any ence announced on Friday attempt by individual U.N. would lead the country back

HIS ROYAL Highness Prince Abdulla Ben Al Hussein on Sunday visited the Civil Defence Department (CDD) and met with its director general, Afif Ghoul, and his senior assis-

The Prince was briefed on the general services in the fields of rescue, first aid and fire fighting offered by the CDD to the public. Prince Abdullah in-responses to emergency He also inspected CDD equipment and fire engines.

U.N. inspectors report cooperation from Baghdad

BAHRAIN (AP) — A 10-member team of U.N. hiologieal weapons inspectors newly returned from Baghdad said Saturday that despite the tension in the Gulf the Iraqis were cooperating well with them.

The team leader, Kenneth G. Johnson of Canada, told reporters: "We encountered high-level support and cooperation.

There was a considerable effort to make things move as smoothly as possible and we encountered no problems, no difficulties, no animosities," be said, "It was a smooth

Mr. Johnson, a member of Ottawa's Defence Industrial Research Programme, spoke to reporters_after the team comprising U.S., Russian, British, Australian and Swedish experts arrived overnight from the Iraqi capital.

They bad been in Iraq since Sept. 30 and visited the south to complete an inventory of universities, research institutes and industrial facilities that Baghdad could use biological weapons programme.

Mr. Jobnson, who was in border not only had no impact on their mission, hut they had been hard put to detect that a crisis had developed.

'We were aware of activities happening, hut they had no impact on what we were doing," he said. Iraqi officials did not men-non the crisis, and ordinary people were just "uniformly "I suppose the only significant change... was that alcoholic heverages were no longer available in the restaurants," Mr. Johnson said. Bahrain is regional headquarters for the U.N. arms inspectors. Nearly 100 teams have gone into Iraq since the 1991 Gulf war ceasefire to dismantle Iraq's weapons of mass destruction and establish a long-term monitoring system to ensure it does not revive the clandestine efforts. U.N. personnel were frequently been harassed by the Iraqis in the past. But in recent months they have reported growing cooperation /as Baghdad complied with U.N. resolutions in an effort to have paralysing U.N. trade sanctions lifted.

The United States and Bri-Baghdad on a similar mission tain claim Baghdad still has last April, said the military not complied fully, alleging it situation along the Knwaiti has hidden missiles and other hardware and is huilding underground bunkers to revive its military programmes.

Road Opsahl, regional cbief of the U.N. Special Commission charged with dismantling Iraq's weapons of mass destruction, said that a seven-member team from the Vienna-hased International Atomic Energy Agency is currently in Iraq.

Its mission is to conduct a routine six-monthly sampling of air, water and soil to check for traces of secret nuclear weapons activity.
The 10-day-old standoff between Iraqi and U.S.-led allied forces in the Gulf has not meant any change in the commission's operations,' Opsahl said, The inspectors bave established a monitoring system to keep Iraq's military facilities and industrial complexes under constant surveillance. A monitoring centre in Baghdad is linked some 50 to 100 spy cameras and sensor systems as part of the unprecedented surveillance opera-

Some 60 U.N. personnel led hy retired Admiral Goaren Wallen of Sweden are manning the centre, which commission Chairman Rolf Ekeus has declared "provisionally operational."

Algerian journalist shot dead

ALGIERS (AFP) — An Algerian radio journalist was shot dead in a southern Algiers suhurb early Sunday. in the larest of a series of attacks targetting the media. a statement from the security

Tayeh Bouterfis, 41, who worked for Arah service of the Chaine 4 foreignlanguage news station. was gunned down as he was getting into his car near his home in the suburh of Bara-

Baraki is a stronghold of the Islamic fundamentalists who are waging war against the military-hacked government and lies within the city's so-called "triangle of fear." an area of poor districts in the south of the city.

Last Monday, six police and six civilians were killed in an attack later claimed has the work of Islamic Salvation Army, the armed wing of the Islamic Salvation Front

Dozens of journalists. teachers, doctors and other tellermals have been killer in attacks mainly claimed by armed Muslim fundamentalist guerrillas.

The violence, which has taken at least 10.000 lives according to the militaryhacked secular regime. began when the army intervened in January 1992 to cancel the second round of general elections the FIS was poised to-

The FIS was subsequently outlawed.

Bouterfis was the '19th journalist to be killed in Algeria since May 1993. according to figures compiled hy AFP.

A colleague at Chaine 4 said Sunday he was "very shocked" hy the news of the Last month, the government released the top leaders of the FIS, convicted in 1992 of state security offences and jailed for 12 years, in a hid to promote dialogue and end he hloody political standoff.

The most radical of the extremist movements. the Armed Islamic Group (GIA), last year warned it would target foreigners it saw as collaborating with the govemment.

Darawshe ends visit. says it achieved gains

AMMAN (Petra) — A delegation of Arab Israelis led hy Knesset Member Abdul Wahab Darawshe ended a several-day visit to Jordan on Sunday and declared their full backing for Jordan's steps towards peace with Israel.
Addressing a press conference in Amman shortly before his departure for home Mr. Darawshe, who heads the Arab Democratic Party in Israel, said that peace with Israel would open the door for regional cooperation and safeguard the interests of all parties.

"There is urgent need for peace to be achieved between Israel and all its neighbours hased on full Israeli withdrawal from all occupied Arab lands." Mr. Darawshe stressed.

He renerated his party's demand for an independent Palestinian state in Palestinian soil and said that this was identical to Jordan's Mr. Darawshe said that in his talks with Jordanian government leaders he reviewed the peace process, stressing tbat Jordan was intent on helping the Palestinians regain their usurped rights. Jordan bas no ambitions whatsoever in Palestine and was keen on enabling the Palestinian people regain independence and freedom." Mr. Darawshe added. Mr. Darawshe said he believed his visit to Jordan achieved gains for the Israeli

Abdul Wahab Darawshe

Arahs, noting that upon directives by His Majesty King Hussein the government of Jordan plans to offer Israeli Arab students seats at Jordanian state universities and allow Israeli Arabs to visit their kins in the King-

Mr. Darawshe, who was seen off by Minister of State Mohammad Thweih and other officials voiced deep appreciation of King Hussein's confinued help for the Palestinian people, stressing. that exchange of visits between the Palestinians and Jordanians would contribute to further enhancing their

Saudi Arabia still holds 27 dissidents

DUBAI (R) — Saudi Arahia said on Sunday it was holding 27 people it believed to be ring-leaders of militant Islamie agitation after a crackdown on dissent in the conservative kingdom last September -An Interior Ministry statement, carried by the official Saudi Press Agency, said 130 other people were released after they admitted their offences, and pledged not to repeat them.

Saudi Arabia said in September it had arrested 110 people in connection with attempts to sow dissent and

"Investigation showed links with other people... which prompted their arrest for investigation... the num-157," it said. "The investigation with those who are less responsihle, numbering 130, ended and they confessed to the mistakes they made and their actions against the security of the state... they regretted that and pledged not to repeat what they did and they were relased," it said.

The remainder, numbering 27, some of whom played major harmful roles, are still under investigation," it

Snnday's statement said the 130 released people were pardoned by King Fahd.

The United States said in September it was monitoring the situation in Saudi Arabia and had "serious concerns" over human rights there.

The detainees were believed to be followers of controversial Muslim preacher Sheikh Salman Al Audah who advocates stricter implementation of Islamic law in Saudi Arahia, already one of the world's most puritanical Muslim states.

Diplomats in the region said Washington's comments angered Saudi Arahia hut the two countries moved quickly to repair the breach and restore the strong ties between

They said Western countries with strong economic interests in Saudi Arabia see its traditional rnlers as a hulwark against militancy such as that spawned by Iran's Islamic revolution.

The fundamentalists oppose Western alliance and any moves towards liberalisation in the kingdom.

An Islamic fundamentalist Saudi opposition group, based in London, says Sheikh Audah's arrest had triggered demonstrations in at least two Saudi cities, the capital Riyadh and Buraida to the northwest, known as a hotbed of militancy in the kingdom.

people were arrested, hut the diplomats said the figure was highly exaggerated.

The Saudi statement did not say if Sheikh Audah was among those released.
It said the Interior Ministry hoped that the release of the I30 people "and their pardon by King Fahd would be a chance for them to assert what they pledged and signed in confessing to their mistakes, regretting what they did and pledging to avoid (repeating it).

Commercial Street

the second of the land of

A STATE OF S

The second to be been

TILL

16 20: 20 mm

It vowed to take "deterrant measures" against anybody who threatens the kindom's security.

The opposition group, the Committee for the Defence of Legitimate Rights (CDLR) in Saudi Arahia, said on Oct. 5 that authorities had carried out a new round of arrests in Saudi Arabia. including professors and

The CDLR was set up in 1993 hy ultra-conservative Saudis and was declared illegal hy Saudi religious leaders who said Islamic laws applied in the kingdom were the best protector of human rights.

Children suffer in sanctions-hit Iraqi hospitals old Haidar Hamas sits on his of the crisis afflicting their leaving for the growing pribed playing with plastic farm health system.

BAGHDAD (R) — Iraqi children, lying in comas or shivering in pain on gruhby hospital beds, are the innocent victims of Baghdad's confrontation with the West.

U.N. sanctions have hrought severe shortages of medicines. Children are suffering and dying from illnesses which could easily be treated if drugs were available. doctors say.

Pneumonia and diarrhoea are the worst killers and malnutrition is on the rise. Mortality rates have risen threefold in recent months at the Saddam Central Teaching Hospital for children, Iraq's main paediatric hospital, said its director, Dr. Qassim Ismail. Last month 85 children died.

"We have shortages of everything - plaster, syringes,

JORDAN TELEVISION

Tel: 773111-19

medical equipment, insulm.

And this is the best supplied hospital in the country. You can imagine the suffering elsewhere, especially outside Baghdad," he said.

During a tour of the wards, Dr. Othman Al Rawi tells a reporter: "A nine-year-old boy died of meningiris two days ago in this bed. We did not have the right medicine.".

old Taha Salim lies in a coma have brought on frequent a coma for days.

Her 23-year-old mother Nadia Abas wiped ber child's brow with a flannel. "I feel my haby is leaving me. I feel helpless," she said.

In the next bed 15-monthon a dirty quilt. She is suffering from gastro-enteritis, diarrhoea and fevers which convulsions. She bas heen in

In another ward five-year-bed playing with plastic farm animals. He suffers from tuberculosis. His father was killed in Gulf war — the conflict which brought on the sancrions. His mother Amina gets a pension of 500 dinars (about $1) a month.

"Before 'sanctions medicine was easy to get free. This bottle of pills cost 150 dinars. It lasts one week," she said. The pills are not those Haidar really needs. He often coughs up blood. Health care was free and Iraq was proud of its welfare system hefore the war and sanctions. Now relatives often have to find their own medicine and hring food to their sick children.

A U.N. aid official supported the doctors' assertions

Under the sanctions, imposed by the United Nations following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait in 1990, trade in medicine and food are not banned. But with no oil revenue, the government is running out of money to import them and the cost for such supplies are beyond the means of the average Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has demanded an easing of the sanctions, pointing to the suffering of the people, but he has yet to comply with the Gulf war ceasefire terms.

The list of the hospital's woes goes on. About 30 Cuhan and Vietnamese nurses have gone home during or since the war, Dr. Islamil said. Iraqi staff are to those members of the elite who can afford better treat-The hospital can no longer afford to give free milk and baby formula to the children - one can of milk costs 400 dinars on the open market. Bed linen is changed every three days but even the soap to wash it properly is in short supply. Three of the 11 wards have been closed and incuhators and other equip-

"Those who are putting on sanctions have no human principles at all. What kind of cruelty do they have," said Dr. Ismail, who did post-graduate studies at the Great Ormond Street Children's Hospital in London.

ment have broken down.

JORDAN TIMES DAILY GUIDE AND CALENDAR

PROGRAMME TWO Magazine Sportil
New in Hebrew
News in Arabic News in English
Love and Hate

PRAYER TIMES

CHURCHES

St. Mary of Nazareth Church Sweifleh, Tel. 810740 Assembles of God Church, Tel. St. Joseph Church Tel. 624590. Church of the Annunciation Tel. 637440. De la Salle Church Tel. 661757 Terrasancta Church Tel: 622366

Church of the Annunciation Tel. ი23541. Anglican Church Tel. 630851. Tel. 628543. an Catholic Church Tel. Armenia 771331. St. Ephraim Church Tel. 771751.

Annuan International Church Tel. Evangelical Lutheran Church Tcl: 824328. 824328. German-speaking Evangelical Con-gregation Tcl. 684195 The Latter-Day Saints Tcl. 654932 Church of Nazarene Tcl.675691. The Evangelical Local Church in

WEATHER

Ammen Tci. 811295

Bulletin supplied by the Department of Meteorology. Temperatures will continue to drop gradually as skies will be cloudy to partly cloudy. There will be a chance of scattered showers with winds northwesterly and to active. In American State of with winds northwesterly moderate to active. In Aqaba, winds will be Mîn./Max. temp.

Yesterday's high temperatures: Amman 23, Aqaba 32 Humidity ceadings: Amman 51 per cent

TELEPHONE NUMBERS NIGHT DUTY

Dr. Khalil Jbali Dr. Ramzi Mzawi Dr. Khalil Al Tushuq Firas pharmacy Ferdows pharmacy . Al Asema pharmacy Nuiroukh pharmacy Al Salam pharmacy Dr. Ali Omari

Alques pharmacy (—)

Dr. Rajch Sagr

Khali(ch pharmacy 985417 EMERGENCIES

Vater and Sewerage 897467 787111 Repairs 623101 Abdali Telephone Repairs 6611111 623101 Jordan Television 773111

Electric Power

RJ Flight Information 08-53200 Queen Alia Intl. Airport 08-53200 HOSPITALS

Hussein Medical Centre 6130... Khalidi Maternity, J. Amn 644281/6 Akileh Maternity. J. Amn. 64244172

Amal Hospital ZARQA: Zarqa Govt. Hospital (09)983323 Zarqa National Hospital (09)900560 tbn Sina Hospital (19)986732 Al Hikma Modern Hospital (79)99999 IRBID: AQABA: Princess Haya Hospital (03)314111 FOR THE TRAVELLER QUEEN ALIA INTERNATIONAL

This information is supplied by Royal Jordanian (RJ) information department at the Queen Alia In-ternational Airport Tel. (08):53:200-5, where it should always he veri-fied. ARRIVALS Rayal Jardanian (RJ)

AIRPORT

08:00 Damascus (RJ) 18:30 Jeddah (RJ) 19:90 Dubai, Abu Dhabi (RJ) 09:15 Riyadh (RJ) Bangkok (RJ)
Casablanca, Tunis (RJ) Other Flights (Terminal 2)

.. Muscat. Abu Dhabi (GF)

01:30 DEPARTURES Rnyal Jordanian (RJ) (Terminal 1)

..... Cairo (RJ) Other Flights (Terminal 2)

...... Istanhul (TK) 19:15 Dubai (EK

HIJAZ RAILWAY TRAIN Dep. Amman 8:00 every Monday Arr. Damascus 5:00 p.m. every Monday Dep. flamuseus 7:30 a.m. every Sunday Arr. Amman 5:00 p.m. every Sunday MARKET PRICES Upper-lower price in fils per kg.

Apple 72b 501

Apple 72b 501

Banana 681

Banana (Mukammar) 620

Calibage 110 / 80

Carrot 27b/180

Caudiflower 300 200

Clamentine 26b 180

Cucumbers (large) 170 / 80

Cucumbers (small) 3-81 / 231

Eggplant 500 200

Gariec 1300/900

Grapes 650 / 450 Grapes Hilwani) 1000/700
Lemon 270: 100 700
Lemon 370: 170 / 80
Marrow (large) 170 / 80
Marrow (small) 320 / 200
Mulukhiab 2119 100
Olive (green) 349 260
Onion (green) 349 260
Onion (dry) 400 / 300
Pepper (hor) 341 / 240
Pepper (sweet) 300 / 200
Potato 400 / 300
Spinach 280 200

AMMAN (J.T.) — Her Majesty Queen Noor Sunday returned to Jordan from a working visit to the United States, where as chair of the Advisory Board of the Centre for the Study of the Glob-al South (CSGS) in Washington D.C. she attended a conference to review the Cairo Conference on Population and Development, said a Royal Court statement.

At the meeting, the Queen beaded a panel discussion on Empowerment of Women: Problems and Prospects."

Queen Noor later delivered the keynote address at a second conference organised by the C.S.G.S, in pre-paration for the World Summit on Social Development (WSSD), to be held in Copenhagen in March 1995.

The conferences brought together professors, United Nations representatives, politicians and social and political activists to participate in academic debates, exchange ideas and formulate tangible recommendations for the Copenhagen summit, according to the statement.

The social summit, said the statement, will focus on three core issues: alleviation and reduction of poverty by securing basic rights to shels, food, education, bealth care, security and survival; expansion of productive employment, through sustainable economic development. fair employment conditions, long-term employment, unemployment programmes for young people and other specific population groups; and enhancement of social integration, particularly of the more marginalised and dis-advantaged groups and the prevention of discrimination.

The participants stressed the need to integrate the findings and recommendations of previous international conferences into a plan of action.

In her keynote address, the Queen said, "we find ourselves at a critical juncture where the needs of people must he put at the centre of development. The causes and effects of social and economic distress can no longer be neatly relegated to any one part of the world. We bave to work together for the common good and our mutual welfare or we will allow disparities and polarisation, resentment and fears to degenerate into a dispiriting and destructive global strug-

Queen Noor emphasised the importance of the role of women in sustainable development saying, "the status and role of women will continue to assume a more and more central importance in fields such as community development, employment, hnman rights and democratisation. Experiences in a variety of cultures repeatedly validate a significant fact: the most effective means of longterm development comprises educating young girls, giving women greater choices and increasing their participation

REVIEWING PROGRESS TOWARDS on the services offered by the government

PEACE: Minister of State Mohammad to the Palestine refugees living in Jordan.

Thwieb Sunday receives a U.S. delega- The delegation whose visit was at the tion representing Pax World Service invitation of the Middle East Council of Friendship who are here on a visit to Churches, Sunday also met with Senate discuss progress in the Middle East peace Speaker Ahmad Lawzi and House Speak-

Japanese business leaders arrive

O.S.K. Lines, Ltd., was sent by the committee on Middle East-Japan relations of Keizai Doyukai (the Japan

Association of Corporate Executives), which is one of the four major economic organisations in Japan, according bership, said the statement, consists of approximately 1,500 executives representing about 900 corporations. It said all the members share

the belief that corporate managers should play a leading role in a large variety of Keizai Doyukai mem-

to the statement.

talks. Mr. Thwieb briefed the delegation er Taher Masri (Petra photo)

- MMAN (J.T.) — A headed by Susumu Tempor-Japanese delegation of in, chairman of Mitsui

businesspersons Sunday arrived in Amman on one leg of a tour of the region which includes Egypt, the West Bank and Gaza Strip to familiarise themselves with the recent developments in the Middle East peace process, according to a statement by the Embassy of Japan here.

into the possibility of cooperation on commercial bases in light of the realisation of a lasting peace in the region,

This 12-member team,

the statement said.

The group is also looking the community at large. The conference urged respect for the diversity of cultures and values at the social summit deliberations.

This theme was emphasised in Queen Noor's address, when she said, "Progressive social develop-ment is not defined by any one single culture, whether it be Western, Islamie, Asian or African. The guiding rule is to develop and grow as' distinct societies with our own traditions and within our own systems."

The Queen summarised the message that should emerge from the preparatory meetings to the Copenhagen summit saying, "social development in the end is not just about improving quality of life. It is about recalling that the buman family's security is at stake. It is about recognising that diversity bas merit and that tolerance and cooperation will have to be the overriding principles leading us to the summit."

economic and social issues

The statement added that

Keizai Doyukai is deeply concerned with the problems facing the world today and strives to make a Japanese contribution towards their

The formation of such a mission to Jordan is the first of its kind after the Gulf crisis of 1990-1991, said the statement. The group is expected to meet ministers, senior officials, members of the Jordan

Businessmen's Association

and others today, then pro-ceed to the West Bank on

Queen returns from U.S. working visit Lightning kills schoolboy in Jweideh 2 other children survive, in fair condition

AMMAN (J.T.) — A seven-year-old boy died and two other children Sunday were injured when they were struck by lightning in Jweideh town about 10 kilometres south of Amman.

A statement carried by the Jordan News Agency, Petra, said that Sanad Sager, 7, died instantly from electrocution while walking home from school with two other youngsters, Nasrin Khaled, 6, and Mahmond Ahmad, 7, who also were struck by the lightning and suffered burns. The incident occurred at the ministries of finance and agriculture employee bousing estate at Jweideb during a torrential thunderstorm.

The two injured children were being treated at Al Bashir Hospital in Amman where they were visited by Education Minister Abdul Raouf Rawabdeb and other officials

The doctor on duty Ali Shawabkeh, who supervised the treatment, said that the children sustained burns to different parts of their bodies and were listed in fair condiRains flood farms

The Ministry of Water and Irrigation Sunday reported that unexpected heavy rains which fell in the Jordan Valley Region Saturday and Sun-day resulted in flooding of certain farmlands.

The ministry said the flood waters carried rocks and soil to the King Abdullah Canal which feeds farm irrigation systems, causing the water to become muddy and forcing the water authority in the region to stop pumping water until the water quality im-

The statement urged local farmers to economise on the consumption of water.

Meanwhile, the Department of Meteorology said Sunday that it will be cloudy or partly cloudy today with scattered showers, especially in the northern and central regions of the country.

A department spokesman said that winds will be northwesterly moderate, and temperatures will not rise above 23°C and will drop to 14°C

Seven-year-old Mahmoud Ahmad Sunday is struck by lightning, while walking home fro treated at Al Bashir Hospital after being school in Jweideh town (Petra photo)

Premier visits northern governorates; receives petitions from parliamentarians

AJLOUN (Petra) - Three parliamentarians from Ajloun Governorate Sunday presented Prime Minister Abdul Salam Majali with requests for improving social and economic conditions in their region.

Speaking during a visit by Dr. Majali to Ajloun, where he attended part of the Executive Council's meetings, Farah Rabadi, Ahmad Qudah and Deifallah Al Momani said that the governorate was in urgent need of agricultural roads, better health and educational services and further governmentattention to improving water distribution and the tourism sector as it relates to the governorate's attractions.

The prime minister also listened to several suggestions presented by directors of local departments, and promised that government would examine the requests and take the necessary wherever possible.

Speaking in the presence of Interior Minister Salameh Hammad, Dr. Majali reaffirmed the government's policy to decentralise and urged local officials to take measures to facilitate government office procedures and cut down on routine.

At the meeting, which was held at the Ajloun Community College, Governor Khaled Khreisha outlined the general situation in the governorate pointing in particular to plans for improving tourist facilities there.

Dr. Majali later visited Jerasb Governorate-and attended the weekly meeting of the local Executive Council which discussed the govemorate's budget and services as well as voluntary work by school students during the holidays and the status of local youth clubs.

Two parliament members from Jerash area, Mifleh Rubeimi and Suleiman Al Saad, presented requests for the improvement of social services in their governorate.

Prime Minister Abdul Salam Majali Sunday attends a meeting of the Ajloun Governorate Executive Council (Petra photo)

WHAT'S GOING ON

SPANISH CULTURAL WEEK

☆ "Vicente Amigo" — Modern Flamenco Jazz Concert with dinner preceding the show at the Forte Grand Hotel Amman at 8:30 p.m. (all proceeds to go to benefit Noor Al Hussein Foundation),

FILM

French film entitled "La Regle Du Jeu" at the French Cultural Centre at 8:00 p.m.

EXHIBITIONS

- Exhibition entitled "Spanish Modern Engraving and Multiplied Sculpture" at the Jordan National Gallery, Jabal Luweibdeh (Tel. 630128).
- ★ The First Computer Art Exhibition in the Arab World at Ain Art Gallery, Wadi Sagra Street (Tel. 644451).
- ★ Exhibition by several Iraqi artists at Phoenix Gallery for Culture and Art, Wasfi Tal Street (Tel. 695291). ☆ Exhibition of abstract art by Maha Sa'id Muhaisen at the - Royal Cultural Centre. ☆ Ceramics exhibition by Iraqi artist Salam Nouri at Alia Art Gallery (Tel. 639350).
- * Exhibition of applied art (flowers, painting on cloths, mirrors and pottery) by Fathiya Al Asi at the University
- ☆ Exhibition of abstract art by Rafi' Nasiri at the French Cultural Centre. ☆ Exhibition of abstract art by Ali Al Mi'mar at the Orfali
- Art Gallery, Umm Uthcina (Tel. 826932). ☆ Exhibition of watercolours by Vladimir Tamari at Darat Al Fumm, Jabal Luweibdeh (Tcl. 643251/2).

Minister urges water conservation in drive to increase food production

AMMAN (J.T.) — Agricul-ture Minister Mansoor Ben Tarif Sunday urged citizens to try to save water because it is becoming an increasingly precious resource, vital, among other things, to food production. In an address marking World Food Day Sunday, the minister said that because the entire world faces water problems, the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organisation (FAO) this year is observing World Food Day under the theme of "Water for Life."

Mr. Ben Tarif said that over the years the increase in population and the improved living standards of the country have required more water consumption and thus measures to provide that water via the construction of dams and the exploration of underground water sources.

He said the Kingdom is considered one of the dry and semi-desert regions of the world relying basically on rainfall as its major water source. He added that between 8,500 to 12,000 million cubic metres of rainwater fall on Jordanian territory annually.

Still, the minister noted that most rain water is lost either through evaporation. seepage deep into the ground, leaving little for irrigation and other pur-

According to Ministry of Agriculture statistics, more than 90 per cent of the total area of Jordan receives annual rainfall of less than 300 millimetres; and experts believe that next year Jordan will face a water deficit of 631 million cubic metres.

The minister said that at least 73 per cent of the water resources in the country are consumed by the agricultural sector leaving 23 per cent for drinking and domestic use and four per cent for indus-

In view of the situation, said the minister, the government bas insisted on regaining its lost right to the water of the Yarmouk and Jordan rivers which he said can contribute to the country's efforts to boost food produc-

Mr. Ben Tarif ontlined several programmes for cultivation of fruit trees, irrigation schemes and soil protec-

The minister spoke two days after his return from a non-aligned ministerial meeting held in Indonesia where delegates dedicated their discussions to the topic of in-creasing food production.

He said that the delegates, who reviewed ways to boost food production in their own countries, pledged to work closely with FAO and other organisations.

Referring to food produc-tion, he said that the Middle Eastern countries including Jordan have increased their food imports from eight million tonnes 30 years ago to 44 million this year.

The minister said statistics and forecasts to the conference revealed that these countries alone would increase their food imports to 78 million tonnes annually by the year 2010.

GULF AIR STYLE

Crulf Air flies nonstop from Amman to the Gulf with a host of convenient onward connections to Bombay, Delhi, Trivandrum, Madras, Colombo, Dhaka and Karachi. Whichever class you travel, you'll fly in comfort and style, enjoying our traditional hospitality. Come fly with us and discover the international smile of the Gulf.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON ROUTES AND SERVICES, CONTACT YOUR LOCAL TRAVEL ACENT OR GULF AIR ON #53613.

Rebel Chechen forces pull out after entering capital

MOSCOW (Agencies) — Pro-Moseow opposition troops trying to oust Chechen President Dzhokhar Dudayev move into the centre of Grozny the capital of Russia's breakaway Cauca-sian republic overnight then withdrew without fighting, opposition troops were ordered to withdraw to their base outside the capital at abont 03:00 a.m. (00:00 GMT), according to these

In a statement to AFP Rusian Khasbulatov, the former president of the Russian Supreme Soviet and a leader of the Chechen Unified Military Command "a criminal error bordering on treason.'

The various leaders of the opposition in Chechenya pooled their forces last month in a unified military command headed by warlord Bislan Gantamirov to secure the overthrow of Mr.

Their forces lannched a major offensive against Grozny around 15:00 GMT Saturday, advancing to within six kilometres (3.5 miles) of the presidential palace.

An AFP correspondent on the spot said they were backed by several belicopters firing rockets. There were a number of casualties in the operation hut no exact figure has been given. After a relatively quiet night opposition forces withdrew, with their military leaders saying they wanted. "to avoid a blood-bath and to provide a last chance for a reasonable solution.

U.S. seeks closer military ties with important countries in the world, both from an econo-

mie and a military point of view. I think it is very important for the United States to have a very good dialogue with the Chinese government," be told reporters

Before going on to the Philippines and South Korea

later this week, be will hold talks with Premier Li Peng,

Communist Party chief and President Jiang Zemin, Defence Minister Chi Haotian

that the military relationship is bounded by the political context, which includes human rights, and that security problems caused by proliferation damage the mutual security interests and bilater-

The secretary is the latest in a series of U.S. officials who have visited China this year since President Bill Clinton ended the linkage between trade benefits and human rights and renewed China's most favoured nation

(MFN) trading status in May.

frank discussion on these issues will be of benefit to both sides," said Mr. Perry. "I don't have specific goals or achievements that I want to make in each of these areas. I just want to move the understanding and the dialogue along in each of those areas."

*- The United States has in the past accused the Chinese of selling missile technology to Pakistan and other coun-

But Secretary of State

Warren Christopher announced this month that the United States would lift technology trade sanctions imposed on China. In exchange China agreed not to export ground-to-ground missiles capable of sending a 1,000-pound (450-kg)

payload 186 miles (298 km).

are U.S. Senators Sam Nunn

Accompanying Mr. Perry

"I believe that open and al relationships, be said.

"To all of them I will stress and top PLA officers.

travelling with him.

China

Sources at Mr. Dudayev's headquarters confirmed the withdrawal, claiming that the opposition had collapsed. In the early hours of Sunday, Mr. Dudayev had appeared briefly on Chechen Television to appeal to the population to stay calm, ITAR-TASS agency reported. It gave no details of the content of his address.

Some of his supporters demonstrated outside the presidential palace during the night, ITAR-TASS said, without giving any number.

Mr. Khasbulatov claimed that "the opposition was losing its prestige, which could even be reduced to zero" as a consequence of the decision

He linked the decision with what he described as the desire of certain political forces in Russia to maintain a permanent state of confrontation in Chechenya but gave no further details.

On Saturday evening Mr. Khasbulatov had appealed for "the rapid opening of negotiations on a transfer of power" to the opposition to avoid excessive loss of life.

The various opposition movements have been seeking since September to overthrow Mr. Dudayev by military means, with the implicit support of Russia which has never recognised the inde-pendence declared by the president of the oil-rich Mushim republic at the end of

Mr. Dudayev's forces accused Russia of attacking the capital and appealed for all able-bodied Chechens to take up arms to defend the repub-lie's independence."

Both sides in the power struggle in Chechenya have often made exaggerated statements of their military successes and their claims could not be checked inde-

The Provisional Council said its troops moved into Grozny at around four p.m. local time (1300 GMT) Saturday and met little resistance.

But Colonel Musa Yusupov, Mr. Dudayev's military commandant, told Interfax News Agency later that Mr. Dudayev was still in control and forces loyal to him had blocked the offensive.

He said Russian helicopters were supporting the opposition forces and had fired about 20 missiles, causing an unknown number of civilian casualties. Col. Yusupov said Mr.

Dudayev's forces blocked a 350-strong group of opposi-tion fighters which tried to enter Grozny and surrounded it on the outskirts. They also foiled an airborne landing.

Mr. Dudayev was directing the defence of the capital from his office in the presidential palace, Col. Yusurpov told Interfax, describing the situation in the city as under control.

He accused Russian regular forces and Interior Ministry troops of taking part in the opposition offensive. Interfax said Russia's North Cancasus military district de-

TASS said Mr. Dudayey's deputy, Vice-President Zelimkhan Yandarhiyev, appeared on television to say Russian troops were attack-ing the capital and to appeal for armed support. "Everyone who considers himself a Chechen and a man must take up arms," he said. Movien Salamov, an aide to Mr. Dudayev, told Radio Russia be believed the attack on Grozny would be beaten off but fighting was taking place on three or four fronts.

Umar Arturkhanov, chairman of the Provisional Council, told the Moscow newspaper Izvestia earlier that his troops were ready to move against Mr. Dudayev.
"Our main problem is not how to enter Grozny and secure it - we can do that in a few hours. The main task is to carry out this operation flawlessly without large casualties not only among the civilian population but among the young men de-ceived by Dudayev," he said.

Mr. Avturkhanov, conde-mned by Mr. Dudayev as a puppet of Moscow, predicted that Mr. Dudayev would definitely be removed by the end of the year but did not say explicity that an offensive was imminent. Russia, while supporting the provisional council, has sworn not to use force itself. An . initial attempt to use Russian troops to oust Mr. Dudayev, a former Soviet Air Force general, in November 1991 ended in a bumiliating climbdown by Moscow.

Sri Lanka to scrap presidency

COLOMBO (AFP) - Sri Lanka's new government announced Sunday that it will move to scrap the country's controversial executive presidency shortly after next month's presidential elec-sent draft proposals on Nov. 24 to dismantle the office of president and revert to parliamentary democracy under a new constitution, Justice Minister G. L. Peiris said.

the government of Prime Minister Chandrika Kumaratunga hoped to have a new constitution for the country by July 1995.

Mrs. Kumaratunga, 49, who led her People's Alliance (PA) to victory in the Aug. 16 general elections, will not exercise all the powers of president, Mr. Peiris said, expressing confidence of her

150 square metre fruitcake, made with fresh been dabbed as the world's biggest fruit-cake. fruit by CERIA/COOVI culinary students, is This is part of the European Cancer Week, presented at Heysel Palace during the food with an eye on "Nutrition vs Cancer" (AFP fair Saturday. Belgian EU Commissioner photo)

British parties prepare for battle lawmakers return to parliament Monday after a summer break which has transformed the political scene and given the opposition Labour Party hope of breaking the Conservative grip on power.

The House of Commons

resumes sittings with opinion polls showing the Labour Party 25 points ahead of the ruling Conservatives, in power since 1979.

Tony Blair, who was elected to the Labour leadership in July, has moved fast to shed socialist dogma which be believes bas caused Labour to lose the last four general elections.

On Friday, Prime Minister John Major made clear to his party's annual conference that be will not respond by leading it to the right as some activists have urged.
Instead, be will hope economie growth and low inflation will produce a "feel good" atmosphere before a general election due hy mid-1997, and that be can paint Labour plans for constitutional reform as likely to lead to the break-up of Britain. "The Tories must be They believe this will head counted as down, far down but not yet out," the Financial Tunes newspaper commented Saturday.

At his party conference last week, Mr. Major tried to put the seal on the rightward shift by announcing he will propose a new statement of the party's philosophy to replace a passage in its constitution which commits it to common ownership. But on Friday Mr. Major, addressing his troops in the seaside town of Bonraemonth, said be would not be panicked into further radical "Change for the sake of change should never appeal to any Conservative. In a world of bewildering change, this party must stand for continuity and stability," he said. Political observers said

Saturday that with the two parties closer together on issues such as taxes, health and education, the constitutional future of Britain was set to emerge as a key battleground in politics.

Labour is committed to setting op separate parlia-ments in Scotland and Wales.

ence in the two nations. But the Conservatives argue the move will prove costly, increase bureancracy and increase the risk of the two countries leaving the United Kingdom.

"The issue of nation will matter more during the next stage of political argument than it has since the '70s," columnist Andrew Marr wrote in Saturday's Independent newspaper.

But the Conservative face constitutional problems of their own with the 1996 intergovernmental conference of the European Union looming

Mr. Major knows he will face pressure for a further integration of the 12-nation grouping which would be anathema to large sections of his party.

His speech Friday barely mentioned the EU, despite a conference fringe speech earlier in the week from former Chancellor or the Exchequer (Finance Minister) Norman Lamont in which be said Britain might have to consider leaving the EU.

Do-it-yourself funerals booming 4 in Britain

World

peace mas

LONDON (R) — Do-it-yourself funerals are boom-ing in Britain with artists ing in Britain with arisis decorating coffins and images of relatives being printed on shrouds. "Buying a coffin should be like buying a wardrobe," said Sue Gill from an arts group which arranged a three-day course for creme-torium managers and AIDS counsellors entitled: "Fance. als and how to make them more personal." "You should be able to go beck with a flatpack coffin, take it home and decorate it," the told the Sunday Telegraph. At the course, artists exhibited coffins decorated with moons and stars. One even displayed a football fan's cremation ura complete with football studs drilled into the

Widower dies after bite from young lover

JAKARTA (AFP) — A 60-year-old widower has died after his girlfriend, half his age, bit his genitals while after making love, a report in the Kompas daily said here Synday Kaciran, from the Sunday. Kasiran, from the village of Dukuseti, Central Java, died Friday after his girlfriend, Sri, 32, attacked his "vital organs". The front page report said Sri missed Kasiran because they had not met for a long time. Kompas said it was not yet clear if Kasiran died as a result of the bite or from other causes. Meanwhile, in Medan, North Sumatra, a 37-year-old man named Tut is recovering in the hospital after cutting off his genitals and burning them as part of a black magic ritual. The report says according to Tut's younger brother, the man wanted to be promoted to the position of manager of the private bus terminal where he worked.

British theatre audiences failing -study

LONDON (R) — Theatre audiences in the land of Shakespeare are falling and finding work as an actor is tougher than ever, according to a survey of British theatre managers. The survey, looking at both commercial and state-subsidised theatres, showed that 7.5 million people bought theatre tickets in 1993-1994 compared with 10 million in 1990-1991. The number of performances also fell from 24,500 to 18,500 over the same period, according to a survey.

Boos, cheers at 1st 2 nights of Royal Opera's Ring

LONDON (AP) — The

Royal Opera House took a pause Saturday after two nights of booing for the start of its new cycle in Richard Wagner's Ring Of The Nibelung. Siegfried, the third work in the cycle is due in March 1995 and the concluding Twilight Of The Gods the following October. The opera bouse wouldn't say whether the protests over the staging of the first two, Rhinegold Thursday and Valkyrie Friday, will force changes. But house is expected to stick it out grimly with the original ideas of British production duo, director Richard Jones and designer Nigel Lowery. There were enthusiastic bravos for the music and singing but stormy derision and shouts of "rubbish" for the often weird and wacky staging. The famous ride of the Valkyries scene saw New. York soprano Deborah Polaski as Brumhilde presiding over her warrior maidens around a stewpot. All dres-sed in black with skeletons painted on, plus short, bouncy skirts and plumed helmets, they handed their mistress bits of bodies to be dunked in the pot. Then in a cloud of steam an inexplicable man in a loincloth jumped out of the pot and scurried into the wings. Fricka, the queen of god-king Wotan, who is supposed to arrive in a chariot stepped out instead from what looked like an armonred Rolls-Royce. There were some gasps and giggles and a few loud laughs from the audience who had paid from £5 to £133.50 ($8 to $211) for seats. The car later switched on beadlamps, folded up and disappeared down a hole. In the Valkyrie climax, where Brumhilde is put to sleep on a mountain-

Kim Jong-II reappears at father's memorial service TOKYO (R) - Reclusive

North Korean leader Kim Jong-Il appeared in public Sunday for the first time since July 20 to attend a memorial service for bis late father, President Kim Il-Sung.
State television footage beamed to Tokyo showed

BEIJING (R) — U.S. Defence Secretary William Per-Mr. Kim, 52. attending a mass rally in a huge square ry arrived in China Sunday in outside the Pyongyang a cautious new push to im-Assembly Hall where the prove military cooperation president's state funeral was but said he would raise contentious issues like humar Standing at the centre of a rights and Beijing's nuclear rostrum flanked by Senior Vice-President and Defence His visit is the first by a Ministeri O Jin-U and Predefence secretary since 1989, when military ties were frozen after the People's Limier Kang Song-San, Mr. Kim seemed in much better health than he did on his last beration Army (PLA) appearance, at funeral rites crushed pro-democracy defor his father, the Stalinist monstrations with heavy loss "great leader" who died of a "China is one of the most beart attack on July 8. Then he looked sickly and listless, prompting specula-tion — later fuelled by bis long absence from public view — that be was either ill or caught up in a power struggle.

A Korean Central News Agency (KCNA), report Sunday seemed designed to set much rumours at rest. It quoted top figures in the rul-Communist Party and military high command using the occasion of the memorial service to pledge loyalty to the younger Kim.

Ever since Kim Il-Sung's sudden death on July 8, North Korea's state media have heaped praise on his son, referring to him as uncontested leader.

Claes faces East Europe challenge in NATO job

BRUSSELS (R) — Belgium's Willy Claes takes over as NATO's top civilian official Monday as the Western alliance tries to promote closer ties with the former Soviet Bloc while struggling to make an impact on the war in Bosnia.

Mr. Claes, who succeeds the late Manfred Woerner of Germany as NATO secretary-general, plans to get straight down to work with little ceremony when he arrives at NATO headquarters to be greeted by his deputy Sergio Balanzino.

NATO sources said the arrival of Mr. Claes, who handed over his job as Belgian foreign minister last week to fellow Flemish Socialist Frank Vandenbroncke, would be regarded with relief at NATO as ending a period of leadership

Mr. Woerner's battle with cancer meant he had to spend long periods in hospital or g in the months before he died on Aug. 13, so that the question of the NATO succession was in the air for much of this year. One urgent problem Mr. Claes will have to address is the role of NATO in providing close air support for U.N. peacekeeping troops in Bos-nia and in backing up heavy weapons-exclusion zones there with the threat of air strikes in response to viola-

On the very day Mr. Claes takes over at the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO), senior alliance offi-cials will be in New York arguing their case with United Nations Secretary-General Boutros Ghali for a tougher policy on air strikes. The alliance, which came through the entire cold war without once firing in anger, has launched a series of limited air strikes this year in pressure, NATO wrote to Dr. Ghali earlier this month recommending that response time be cot where appropriate for NATO to retaliate against exclusion against exdusion zone violations.

NATO also wants to have the option of launching air strikes without warning and possibly against more than one target.

NATO sources stress that any air attack should be proportionate to the violations and that the U.N. authorities would still have joint control of operations. But the U.N. side fears more robust action would risk wider confrontations by hitting targets in areas not related to the original offence.

Beyond the immediate problems of trying to end the bloodshed in Bosnia, NATO under Mr. Claes's leadership will face its major challenge in fostering closer relations with East European countries without alienating or isolat-

Opinion within the alliance is divided on the speed with which NATO should plan to expand to take in former Communist countries.

German Defence Minister Volker Rnehe called last month for NATO to announce soon which countries would be first to join, and said they should be Poland, Hungary, the Czech Republic and Slovakia. He added that Russia and Ukraine should be told they could not join.

Other defence ministers disagreed with this haste, arguing that the question was too sensitive and needed

NATO is meanwhile trying to foster closer relations with all countries of the former Soviet Union as well as nearer eastern neighbours after polls

He told reporters here that

During the interim period, victory.

India seeks to hold elections in Kashmir science" by Amnesty Inter-

NEW DELHI (AFP) - The Indian government is laying the groundwork for elections mir in a gamble it hopes will help bring about an end to a bloody five-year-old Muslim separatist campaign.

Indian officials are pressing ahead with plans to hold the first elections in the state in more than seven years amid widespread skepticism over whether Kashmir's alienated Muslim population will participate in the polls.

In a move seen as the latest effort to create a climate conducive to elections, the Indian authorities Friday released Shabir Ahmad Shah, a prominent Kashmiri Muslim separatist leader, from prison.

Bnt the 40-year-old Shah, declared a "prisoner of conbis demands for selfand said be had no faith in the Indian electoral system.

Massive fraud marred the last state assembly elections in Kashmir, in 1987, and the irregularities were believed to have precipitated the armed struggle gripping Indi-a's only Muslim-majority

Shah said U.N.-supervised poils should be held to elect representatives of the Kashmiri people who could then take part in trilateral talks with India and Pakistan on the future of the Himalayan

Pakistan also lays claim to Kashmir and has been accused by India of giving support to the Muslim militants national, promptly reiterated waging the separatist campaign

nal Security Rajesh Pilot, who has been playing the role of point man in attempts to organise elections in Kashmir, said the government was aware there were a number of obstacles in its way. "But we are determined to restore the democratic process to this part of the country," he told AFP in a telephone interview. "We know there will be hurdles but we are confident of overcoming

"We would have to have normaley first," Mr. Pilot said. "Not total gun silence but we hope to reduce the level of militancy, to reduce the level of violence."

Charles forced into loveless marriage — book much ... it is like being trapped in a rather desperate cul-de-sac." LONDON (R) — Prinœ

Charles was forced into a loveless marriage with Princess Diana by his domineering father, according to an anthorised biography of Bri-tain's anguished heir to the Prince Charles likened the ill-fated union to a Greek tragedy and asked: "I never thought it would end up like this. How could I have got it so wrong?".

In a high-risk expose that could backfire on Prince Charles and plunge the British monarchy into crisis, be gave unparalled access to broadcaster Jonathan Dimbleby for the biography.

The marriage, launched with much international fanfare in 1981 as a fairytale romance, is portrayed as stormy from the start with Princess Diana mutilating herself in attempted suicides and suffering from an eating dis-

The book, serialised in the Snnday Times, said the young Diana's insecurity was fuelled hy "the canker of jealousy" with her being convinced that Prince Charles was deceiving her with his old flame Camilla Parker-Prince Charles admitted in television interview with Mr. Dimbleby in June that he had committed adultery when his marriage had broken down irretrievably. His honesty won him plandits and convinced Prince Charles to go ahead with the calculated risk of an authorised hiography that he

A poll in the Sunday Ex-press showed that a majority of Britons felt Prince Charles was wrong to bare his soul for a biographer. Nearly one in three felt be had damaged his parents with his portrait of a sad childhood.

Conservative Party lawmakers told Prince Charles to stop fighting with Princess Diana for public sympathy and media reports spoke of serious alarm in the government about the rapid erosion of public confidence in the monarchy.

The timing was also disastrons. Queen Elizabeth flies to Moscow Monday on the first Russian visit by a British monarch after decades of hostility to the land that executed her Romanov

The book portrays an angst-ridden prince domin-ated by his father, the Duke of Edinburgh, who issued him an ultimatum — propose to the shy young Diana or end the relationship.

His father also ordered Prince Charles to end one affair before it caused a scandal and another girl was told 'sbe should make herself scarce.' Letters to friends showed he felt the marriage was on the rocks within five years. He wrote in 1986: "Frequently I feel nowadays that I'm in a kind of cage, pacing up and down it longing to be free.

"How awful incompatibility is and how dreadfully destructive it can be for the players in this extraordinary

The Duke of Edinburgh is portrayed as stern father who reduced his son to tears. On life at his austere boarding school Gordonstoun, Prince Charles said: "It's such hell... it's such a bole here... the language people use is hor-His great-uncle, Earl Mountbatten, was Prince Charles' closest confident, advising him: "In a case like many affairs as he can before settling down.' Prince Charles proposed to Lord Mountbatten's grand-danghter Amanda Knatchbull but she turned him

yours, a man should have as Lord Monntbatten was blown up and killed by Irish Republican guerrillas in 1979. Prince Charles was devastated, writing in his journal on the day of his death: "Life has to go on I suppose but this afternoon I must confess I want to stop.

"Kiss and tell" books about the royal family are one of the biggest growth indus-tries in Britain — and the publishing bonanza shows no signs of drying up.

Bookshops are crammed with them and tabloids vie for the juiciest serialisation extracts. The best-selling contenders range from a saccharme romance written in pulp fiction prose to the soulsearching of a tortured prince.

For the tale of Diana and Charles is the stuff that soap win the hearts of a nation. Prince Charles Biography comes less than two weeks after publication of Princess In Love which claims to tell the tale of Princess Diana's five-year love affair with dashing young cavalry officer James Hewitt.

But the flood of royal books is far from over and publishers are rubbing their hands with glee. Andrew Morton, who became a millionaire in 1992 with his book Diana - Her Own True Story, is to hit the bookstands again this month with Diana — Her New Life. It was Mr. Morton who first shattered the fairytale image, portraying Princess Diana suffering from an eating disorder and attempting suicide as her marriage disintegrated. It was a buge international bestseller.

Others have jumped onto the royal bandwagon as Britons showed a voracious appetite for any tittle-tattle about the most public marriage breakup of the centory. Royal photographer

Arthur Edwards from the tabloid Sun tried his luck with I'll Tell; The Jokes Arthur, a book which tells of his career doorstepping the royal fami-ly. Leading royal-watchers James Whitaker and Nigel Dempster also pitched their hats into the monarchical

But it was Anna Pasternak who won the dubious accolade of being the most panned royal biographer - her Princess In Love was univerka comma

ench have

South African President Nelson Mandela (centre), Home Affairs Minister Mangosuthn Bnthelezi (left) and Energy Minister Pik Botha wave at supporters at Orlando Stadium in the township of Soweto, where they addressed n rally to celebrate national safety and security day (AFP photo)

Peace may return to S. Africa's streets

JOHANNESBURG (R) -Peace may be returning to some of South Africa's streets of fear, which a few months ago echoed to the sound of gunfire and the cries of the victims of violence.

With arms clasped around one another, President Nelson Mandela, his most vocal political foe Zulu Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi and Pik Botha, ex-foreign minister in the last white government. carried messages of unity and hope to dirt-poor townships scarred by years of violence and apartheid unrest.

"They showed us it (unity) is achievable, that we don't have to kill each other," ANC supporter Solomon Kumalo told Reuters Sunday.
"It gave us something to hope for."

"There hase been absolutely no violence (overnight) it's dead quiet," police spokemsan Lieutenant Jan Combrinck said Sunday. Some blacks had stared in open-mouthed amazement as the three leaders stood shoulder-to-shoulder on the back of a police truck ferrying them around Johannes-hurg's townships Saturday. In Vosloorus, once one of the most violent townships in Khmer Rouge guerrilla chief whose forces were responsible for a July train ambush in which 13 people were killed and three Westerners were taken hostage has defected to the Cambodian government

the government said it would

Commander Rin told the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) in an inter-

Commander Rin, the second-in-command at the

Khmer Rouge's Vine Mountain Base in southern Cambodia, said he had defected

Saturday with more than 100

PARIS (Agencies) — The campaign to choose France's

new "boss of bosses" has begun in earnest, a head-tohead struggle that many see

as a dry run for the fight to lead the nation between Edouard Balladur and Jac-

The two candidates for the presidency of the CNPF employers federation are Jean-

Louis Giral, a political ally of

Paris Mayor Chirac, and Jean

Gandois, said to be favoured

by Prime Minister Balladur.

Conseil National du Patronat

Français (CNPF) on Dec. 13

will choose the successor to Michel Perigot - just when the undeclared contest between Gaullists Chirac and Balladur for the conservative mantle in May's presidential race should be coming out

The French press depicts

the CNPF campaign as pitting a small-business capital-into the open.

A General Assembly of view Snnday.

supporters.

ques Chirac.

develop the area I live in,"

"The reason I defected is the country, banners of Mr. Mandela's ruling African National Congress (ANC) and Mr. Buthelezi's Inkatha Freedom Party (IFP) flew side by side.

ANC and Inkatha supporters, who only five months ago were literally at each other's throats, sat together for some time to listen to their leaders, although many left a few minutes into a speech by the Zulu chief. One woman, a member of the township choir, said the peace tour was long overdue.

"Why don't they do this four years ago. less people would have died," she said, referring to the deaths of more than 15,000 people. most of them blacks, in turf wars between the ANC and their Inkatha rivals since then-President F.W. De Klerk unbanned opposition groups and began dismantling apartheid. While political violence has declined since the April elections which ended more than three centuries of white power, Mr. Mandela and his national unity government, of which Mr. Buthelezi, Mr. De Klerk and Mr. Botha are members, has declared war "As long as I am the presi-

Rouge forces under his control took part in the July 26

train ambush in which Briton

Mark Slater, 28, Jean-Michel

Braquet, 27, from France, and Australian David Wilson, 29, were taken hostage.

did not know if the three men train I met the three foreign hostages only for one night when they stayed in my house ordered them to be taken to his place - I don't know whether they are still alive,"

General Paet is the overall

Then General Paet

Commander Rin said he

"After the ambush on the PHNOM PENH (R) - A He admitted that Khmer Vine Mountain.

were still alive.

on Vine Mountain.

he said.

going to go all out to destroy crime," said Mr. Mandela, warning township-dwellers that it was threatening the post-apartheid reconstruction of South Africa, now political unrest had all-but been eradicated. Mr. Buthelezi, whose rela-

dent of this country 1 am tions with the ANC have been marked by distrust and suspicion, went out of his way during the rallies to tell supporters in both camps the days of violence were over. On this historic day, President Nelson Mandela and I have finally come together as the political leaders of the new South Africa to join hands and share the responsibility," he said. He said partisan armed groups, hlamed for much of the township violence, "have to work together... against a common enemy of violence, crime and intimidation." To underline that rap:

prochement, several hundred former gunmen, clad in newly-issued dark blue police reserve uniforms, paraded in front of the leaders in Vosloorus pledging to fight crime rather than each other. On Khumalo Street, once a

"free-fire zone" separating Inkatha-supporting migrant

The interview, conducted at Kep Military Headquarters, 30 kilometres southeast of Kampot town, was conducted under the watchful eye of a senior Cambodian nervous and frequently looked at the army officer for

Earlier Sunday a senior

Cambodian government minister confirmed that

Khmer Rouge guerrillas had fence Ek Sereyvuth told Reuters that at least 76 Khmer

Rouge guerrillas had de-fected from their base in Vine

Secretary of State for De-

Commander Rin appeared

army officer.

guidance.

defected.

workers living in hostels from ANC-supporting township residents, state television showed jubilant blacks from boths sides of the fence at peace for the first time in "Members of the South African Police Service are your police. They are not the police of apartheid," Mr. Mandela told the rally in Vosloorus township. "Attacks on the police are totally unacceptable," added Mr. Mandela, who as a political prisoner for 27 years personally experienced the harshness of the apartheidera forces of law and order. "The community... should help protect the police hy denying refuge to the criminals who carry out such attacks, expose the criminals," he added. Nearly 200 police men and women have been killed so far this year — about a third of them in attacks while on While political violence has fallen dramatically since South Africa's first all-race elections in April, at least 58 people a day were murdered in criminal violence in the first six months of the year. Most of the killers and victims were black. Rebel commander defects to Cambodian government

Initial reports had said that 100 insurgents had crossed over to the government side, accompanied by their com-

the number is a little less —

The minister said: "I think

Commander Rin's wife de-fected last Tuesday. Senior army officers said she returned to the Vine Mountain base Friday to persuade her husband and his supporters

army officers and been escorted by convoy to Phnom

Penh for briefings with senior intelligence officers hefore

being returned to her home

Last Thursday she had met to follow

at Kep.

president, parliament SKOPJE (R) - Macedo-

for their tiny republic which has managed to avoid the wars that have plagued the other republics seceding from former Yugoslavia. Morning turnout was heavy in the first presidential liamentary polls since Mace-donia broke away from the former Balkan federation in 1992. Election Commission officials said.

paigned over the past month essentially on the issue of "war or peace," each claiming that, if their opponents were elected, the state would slide into ethnic violence or confrontation with its neigh-

The potential threats are manifold in a region where sovereignty has shifted many times over the centuries. The refusal by Serbia and Greece to recognise the new state and Bulgaria's qualified rec-ognition underline the ten-

President Kiro Gligorov, a verteran politician who for four years has steered the country clear of ethnic strife and showdown with its neighbours, is the candidate of the ruling three-party union for Macedonia coalition.

The 77-year-old president's campaign slogan "independence, peace and security" and his pledges of security, alleging that nationalism could upset stability, have won him the support of the country's large ethnic Albanian community.

The Albanians say they

Ljuhisa Georgievski of the

Mr. Georgievski's slogan-"Macedonia for the Macedo-

the poorest of all ex-Yugoslavia's republics, is hard hit by U.N. sanctions against rump Yugoslavia and a trade embargo slapped by Greece which disputes the republic's name.

the north, Bulgaria to the east, Albania to the west and the century.

Bosnian troops refuse to leave Sarajevo demilitarised zone

SARAJEVO (Agencies) — Bosnian forces deployed in the demilitarised zone (DMZ) of Mount Igman have failed to withdraw despite being asked to do so by U.N. forces, a spokesman for the United Nations Protection Force (UNPROFOR) said Sunday

"We have recorded no movement by the troops," Major Koos Sol said. The Bosnian army is mainly composed of Muslims.

On Saturday another U.N. spokesman had said that the 500 troops, whn are vinlating the agreement on the demilitarisation of the sector signed in August 1993, were "sup-posed to leave" that day.

U.N. headquarters now believe that the military commander in the sector is refusing to honour the assurances given publicly by the govern-ment in Sarajevn that it would evacuate the zone, which covers 28 mountainous square kilometres (11 square mieles) and is in theory demilitarised. "We think that Major Fik-ret Prevljak, who has authority over Igman and the area around the airport, is under the direct influence of the President (Alija Izetbego-vic)," a senior U.N. officer who requested anonymity told AFP Sunday.

Mr. Izetbegovic caused univeral surprise on Oct. 7 when he declared that "the Bosnian army was not forbidden to be in the so-called demilitarised zone."

"The government is mak-ing a link between the DMZ and the 20-kilometre heavy weapons total exclusion zone around Sarajevo, where they say the Serbs have kept banned weapons," the senior officer said.

Macedonians

He added: "It has to be understood that Major Previjak controls everything that comes into Sarajevo through the tunnel" which runs from Igman to the city under the runways of the airport, which is controlled by French U.N.

"So he is a powerful man. What is going on around DMZ has more to do with politics than military tactics," he said.

Attempts by French U.N. troops deployed in Igman to try to get the DMZ respected seem, therefore, certain to fail, in the view of observers in Sarajevo. That view is lent weight by the statement Friday by a Bosnian army commander that the DMZ "does not exist and never has existed." This senior officer told APF, on condition that be was not identified, that "our troops are still in the zone and they are going to stay there." Serb forces in Bosnia have threatened an offensive if U.N. troops do not succeed in removing Bosnian troops from the DMZ by Oct. 2I. The ultimatum followed a raid by a Bosnian army commando on Oct. 6 in which 20 out of 26 occupants of a Serb mmand post on the edge of the DMZ were killed. "This ultimatum is just a threat which won't he carried the Bosnain officer said. The DMZ on Igman was created to stop a Serb offensive which was on the point of cutting the only clandestine supply route into Saraievo. The Serbs agreed to pull hack on condition that the U.N. guaranteed that the Bosnian army would not take advantage of their withdrawal.

But the terrain on the mountain, one of the sites of the 1984 Winter Olympics, is rugged and heavily-wooded and French soldiers have not been able to prevent infiltration by infantry. Meanwhile Bosnian Prime Minister Haris Silaidzic has launched a bitter attack on the international community. accusing it of pandering to the Serbs and ignoring the "strangulation" of Sarajevo. He said the latest phase of ohe Bosnian "peace process" had played into the hands of the government of Serbian President Slohodan Milosevic.

Mr. Silajdzic said the majnr powers were responding to the humanitarian crisis in Sarajevo as if it were simply a natural disaster rather than the result of two-and-a-half years of siege by Serb forces. "They are... treating it as a natural catastrophe, so they are hringing aid into Sarajevo. This is not a natural catastrophe, this is a manmade catastrophe," he said in an interview with Reuters Television Saturday. "It is quite clear. Sarajevo is being strangulated because it is being used as leverage to extract a political settlement that suits the regime in Bel-

He added: "So this is blackmail, by the international community practically agreeing with this."
International sanctions against Belgrade have been eased to reward Mr. Milosevic for his decision to mount a military blockade against the Bosnian Serbs following their refusal to accept the latest international peace

Mr. Silajdzic made clear he expected NATO to fulfill a commitment that it should be called in to mount air strikes against the Serbs to force them to end the siege of Sarajevo.

"Sarajevo is being strangulated as you know. We expect NATO to act according to that commitment unless Sarajevo is reopened again. because we are facing winter. We have a shortage of food, shortage of fuel." Mr. Silajdzic made clear his government would not accept any changes in the peace plan, which awards 51 per cent of Bosnia to the Muslim-Croat alliance and the rest to the Serbs who would have ot give up about a third of the 70 per cent they now hold.

French Foreign Minister Alain Jappe recently hinted at possible amendments to the peace plan, drawn up by a five-nation "contact group" on Bosnia, in order to break an impasse in attempts to persuade the Serbs to accept "The contact group com-mitment was not to talk any more about the peace plan until the Bosnian Serbs accept the peace plan," Mr. Silajdzic said.

"They have not accepted the peace plan and now we hear from some of the contact group countries that they consider changing the plan. This will kill the credibility of the contact group."

The contact group is com-prised of the United States, Russia, Britain, Germany and France.

vote for new

nians voted Sunday to elect a new president and parliament

All the candidates cam-sions.

account for as much as 40 per cent of the population. Authorities halve that figure. Mr. Gligorov's rival is Internal Macedonian Revolutionary Organisation (TMRO), who argues that Mr. Gligorov has failed to reform the old Communist system and has sold out to Greek and Albanian demands.

nians no to totalitarianism" is not expected to win much sympathy from the 1,389,000 voters longing to hear talk of economic revival. Land-locked Macedonia,

Its neighbours, Serbia to Greece to the south have already fought two bloody Balkan wars at the start of U.S., N. Korea resume nuclear talks But after an evening meet-ing between Mr. Gallucci and Mr. Kang both delegations said no progress had been made and a North Korean official apprils accessed North Koreans were "hang-

GENEVA (Agencies) — Senior officials from North Korea and the United States unexpectedly resumed negotiations on reshaping Pyon-gyang's nuclear programme Sunday, a day after reporting that no progress was being made: Diplomats, said U.S. Ambassador-at-large Robert Gallucci headed a small U.S.

delegation for talks at the North Korean mission with Deputy Foreign Minister

On Saturday an accord peared to be close laving out the terms and timetable for North Korea's switch from graphite reactors to light-water models which produce little of the plutonium Pyongyang is accused of having diverted for arms.

Kang Sok-Ju.

official angrily accused Washington of adopting "an unacceptable, abnormal posi-Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Thomas Hubbard, number two in Washington's team, said then that no talks were planned for Sunday. U.S. and North Korean mission spokesman said it

Sunday's meeting would last. Neither Mr. Hubbard nor his North Korean counterpart Ho Jong offered any details of what had blocked agreement Saturday. Diplomats said the Communist ing tough" in the last stages of the negotiations. Saturday's reverse had come after increasing signs that a deal was close that would formalise and flesh out an outline accord reached in August. Under that accord North Korea agreed to freeze its graphite reactor construction programme and close down its one experimental reactor if the United States created a consortium of nations to provide it with the much more costly light-water reactor.

U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Winston Lord said in Washington Friday that the negotiations "may be on the verge of a rather significant breakthrough."

100 feared dead as Bangladesh ferry sinks were still missing and they after that accident

COX'S BAZAR, Bang-ladesh (R) — More than 100 people were feared to have drowned Sunday in Bang-ladesh's second ferry disaster in two months, police said. They said 44 bodies had been retrieved after a ferry carrying a 165-strong bridal party went down in the turbulent Bay of Bengal. Some 55 passengers managed to reach the shore following the accident near Madarhari Island, 40 kilometres from the resort town of Cox's Bazar. Survivors said 66 people feared they had drowned. The bodies of I2 men and 32 women and children had been found, police told reporters. A police officer said the search for the missing mcmhers of the hridal party was continuing, without giving Nearly 350 Bangladeshis were killed after a ferry capsized in a whirlpool on the Meghna River near Chandpur, 100 kilometres southeast of Dhaka in August. Only 30 bodies were found

The rivers of low-lying Bangladesh have been the scene of some of the world's worst ferry accidents in recent years. In May 1986, some 600 people died when a ferry carrying at least 1,000 passengers capsized in the Meghna in a storm. Boat tragedies in Bangladesh kill up to 2,500 people every year. Boats carry 60 per cent of total passengers and merchandise in this overcrowded nation of more than 100 million people.

Irish Republicans want talks with Protestant leaders now LONDON (R) - Leading Irish Republican Martin McGuinness said Sunday he wanted to stage immediate talks with Protestant leaders now that guerrillas on both sides of the sectarian divide had laid down their arms. Prominent Protestant activist David Ervine, who helpd broker the Protestant ceasefire, stuck a more captious note, however. "We have got to go slowly," he said. With the guns finally silent in Northern Ireland after 25 years of conflict, Mr. McGuinness accused the British government of "running scared" and said peace talks should start immediate-The Irish Republican

Army (IRA), which has long battled to oust Britain from Northern Ireland, declared a ceasefire six weeks ago. Protestant guerrillas followed suit last week. After centuries of mistrust and enmity hetween Protestant and Catholic, Mr. Ervine from the Progressive Unionist Party and Mr. McGuinness from the IRA's political wing, Sinn Fein, spoke of the urgency of moving the peace process forward. Mr. McGuinness said on

BBC Television: "I would like to meet with David Ervine tomorrow morning. I have no difficulty about that whatsoever.'

Mr. Ervine, also interviewed by Sir David Frost on the same show, replied: "Not tomorrow morning... We have got to go slowly. Let us be careful whose agenda we are following and take our time.

Mr. McGuinness renewed Sinn Fein pleas for Britain to come to the negotiating "The British government is stalling," he said.

"I think we are actually seeing the British government running scared of talks with Sinn Fein. It is quite clear they cannot be put off and now talks will take place in the next few weeks in my opinion."

Sinn Fein leader Gerry Adams accused the British government - which is holding back on talks until it receives more proof the sixweek-old IRA trace is permanent — of trying to 'slow down the momentum of the peace process for tacrical reasons.

Mr. Major's approach to talks from the outset "has been besitant, slow and reluctant," said Mr. Adams, who returned Saturday from a ited States. ... There will have to be talks as soon as possible in-volving both the British and Irish governments and all the political parties - including Sinn Fein," Mr. Adams told reporters at Dublin Airport. Earlier, Irish Prime Minister Albert Reynolds said be believes Mr. Major in his own time will capitalise on the new climate of peace.

...We'll get there... where we always wanted to get from the first day we mer," Mr. Reynolds told BBC Radio,

Mr. Reynolds said that in a call to Mr. Major Friday, he had stressed "the desire of an awful lot of people to try to consolidate it (peace) and make sure that the opportunity isn't lost."

Mr. Major, who must protect the interests of Northern Ireland's Protestant majority, told the Tory conference, "other people call for speed. But I must ask the hard questions."

"I must make the right judgment at the right time; ".liw I baA

Protestant paramilitaries say their ceasefire; announced Thursday, will last as long as the IRA truce.

ist entrepreneur - Mr. Giral - against the technocratic managerial elite that run hig business - personified by Mr. Gandois, whose rival calls him a mandarin. Mr. Gandois. 64, who stepped down as head of state aluminium group Pechiney in July, has a slight lead, newspapers say. The difficulties of Mr. Giral, 60, millionaire head of family building company Desquenne et Giral, mirror the troubles of his friend Mr.

Chirac, who has seen his dreams of power jeopardised

by Mr. Balladur's surprise popularity as premier. Gaullist leader Chirac, twice prime minister himself. hopes to efface two failed bids for the presidency with a third run next year in an election the right has every chance of winning.

But Mr. Balladur, whom

Mr. Chirac put forward last year to "cohabit" with Socialist President François Mitterrand, has raced past him in the opinion polls.

There are a number of comparisons between the CNPF race and the real presidential election. Mr. Giral, who sits as a Gaullist on Paris City Council, is an energetic action man — like Mr. Chirac. And he wants more radical government action to bolster economic growth — like Mr. Chir-Unlike Mr. Chirac, he campaigned against French ratification of the Maastricht Treaty on European Union in 1992. But his identification with Gaullists' anti-European wing distances him from the pro-European Balladur. The pro-European Gandots, head of state company, has close relations with politicians across the spectrum, though he made his views on state ownership clear by resigning as head of chemicals group Rhone-Poulenc in 1982 when Mr. Mitterrand nationalised it.

His long career in the upper echelons of the state economic administration makes him more akin to Mr. Balla-

At stake in running the CNPF is control over an influential lohby and a big say

Khmer Rouge commander at Mountain in southern Cam-French bosses vie for power in presidency dry run in negotiations on the future of France's financially troubled Social Security Systems, which the employers run with > supervision. As Mr. Balladur and Mr. Chirac slug it out to persuade conservative power brokers they can be the first to win the presidential palace for the Gaullists in 25 years, the Gandois-Giral contest has taken on added significance.

trade unions under official

Some commentators see the outcome as an indirect indicator of husiness confidence in the presidential candidates. They aruge that industrialists may vote for the man they think will be best placed to deal with France's next president. Meanwhile Mr. Balladur hurried to reshuffle his corruption-hit government Sunday in a bid to restore its credibility and preserve his own chances in next year's presidential election.

who resigned Friday over allegedly corrupt property deals, Mr. Balladur had to act quickly to restore his authority amid increasing hickering among surviving members of his government. The reshuffle, which will be limited, was expected to

With one minister in jail

since Thursday and a second

Mr. Balladur was also trying to reverse a trend which has seen the star of European Commission President Jacques Delors rising in the presidential stakes as the

be announced later Sunday

or Monday, political sources likely Socialist candidate and running neck-and-neck with Industry Minister Gerard Longuet, who resigned Friday was expected to he replaced by the secretary-general of his own Republican Party (PR), Jose Rosso, hut prohably with a different portfolio, the sources said.

Mr. Longuet's three portfolios - indsutry, post and telecommunications and foreign trade — were expected to be shared around existing ministers. Mr. Longuet stands accused of paying a bargain basement price for his second home in the French Riviera resort of Saint-Tropez in a corrupt transaction and shady dealing over the acquisition of the PR's Paris headquarters and the party's financing. Alain Carignon, who resigned last July as communication minister and was charged with fraud, was indicted with the more serious count of corruption Thursday and re-manded in custody. His job was taken by Budget Minister and government spokesman Nicolas Sarkozy.

embarrassed by an open row between two top ministers, with Interior Minister Charles Pasqua criticising Foreign Minister Alain Juppe for joining Mr. Chirac's campaign for the presidentials. "It is up to (Juppe) to say to what extent he can reconcile the two functions (of minister and Chirac advisor)," Mr. Pasqua said in a newspaper interview

Mr. Balladur was also

Chairman of the Board of Directors: MAHMOUD AL KAYED

Director General: MOHAMMAD AMAD

Editor-in-Chief:

GEORGE S. HAWATMEH Editorial and advertising offices:

Jordan Press Foundation. University Road, P.O. Box 6710, Amman, Jordan.

Telephones: 667171/6, 670141-4 Telex: 21497 ALRAI JO Facsimile: 696183

The Jordan Times is published daily except Fridays. Subscription and advertising rates are available from the Jordan Times advertising department.

For the violence to end

DURING NEARLY three decades of ruthless occupation, Israel failed to end the Palestinian resistance to its presence in the West Bank and Gaza. Despite its well-equipped security apparatus and oppressive policies. Israel could not end the activities of the Islamic Resistance Movement, Hamas, against the occupa-tion. Israel, therefore, is defying logic by expecting the nascent Palestine National Anthority (PNA) to control the activities of Hamas. Israel knows very well that the PNA will not be able to end the presence of Hamas on the Palestinian political arena by resorting to violence. It also knows that by pressuring the PNA to deal with Hamas in an oppressive and undemocratic way, it is setting the stage for massive disorder and disturbances in the occupied territories.

Cracking down on Hamas will not achieve the objective of bringing about stability and security to Palestine. The PNA cannot afford to replace Israel as the oppressor of the Palestinian people. After so many years of occupation, what the Palestinians need is a democratic government that respects the law and upholds human rights. Ironically, Israel says it too wants a democratic Palestinian self-rule authority while everything it is doing indicates that what it is really seeking is obliteration of all forms of resistance to its occupation of Arab lands,

Israel hides behind its democratic cover when dealing with Israeli extremists who oppose the peace process as much as Hamas does. Those Israeli extremists are part of the Israeli system of government; they are represented in parliament and they have public for a from which they call for ending the peace process and evicting all Palestinians from the occupied Arab lands. What is even more ironic is that Israel will not break the law to belittle the influence of Israeli hardliners or check their unlawful activities in Israel and the occupied territories but is asking the Palestinians to do so when dealing with Hamas. That speaks volumes about Israel's hypocrisy and proves that its only concern is to protect its immediate interests even if that was on the expense of the Palestinians or the long-term stability of the area.

A year after the Oslo accord, Israel has done little to demonstrate its commitment to the various agreeimplementing the provisions of these accords has helped undermine much of the credibility of the peace process among the Palestinians. That in turn has given more credence to the opponents of the Oslo accord and is driving sceptics towards opposition.

Israel should not be pushing the PNA towards dictatorship if it is really interested in having peace and stability prevail in the region. It should be working to rally more support for the Oslo accord by implementing its provisions. When Israel withdraws its troops then the Palestinian areas, when it helps the Palestinians achieve early empowerment, when it allows the holding of democratic elections and when it frees thousands of Palestinian detainees, people will have more faith in the peace process and then violence will recede.

Before that happens, however, Palestinians will have little reason to stop their resistance activities against Israel. Support for the PNA will start to erode and hardliners will rule the day. The peace process can only be the victim of such a scenario which is becoming more likely due if only because of Israel's misguided policies.

ARABIC PRESS COMMENTARIES

AL RA'I daily Sunday accused Israeb Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of being solely responsible for the death of the kidnapped Israeli soldier, stressing that the iron-fist policy which be continues to pursue has backfired and could cause adverse consequences to the Israeli society. By following the collective punishment policy against the Palestinian people and by closing the Gaza Strip, Mr. Rabin has not ended Isreal's headaches but rather increased them and created an atmosphere in which Hamas and also the supporters of the Oslo deal found themselves against the occcupation and more determined to end it, said the daily. It is Mr. Rabin and his government that is responsible for the acts of terrorism exercised against the Palestinian people through the settlers and the soldiers and it is this very policy that caused the end of the life of the kidnapped soldier, whose release could have been secured through negonations with the Hamas leadership, added the paper. The paper said that time and again experiences has proved that the use of violence can only breed violence and that no lasting peace can be achieved in an atmosphere of terror, intimidation and occupation.

IN JUST four months, the Control and Inspection Bureau was able to save JD 2.2 million for the state treasury from the hands of irresponsible officials in government departments and succeeded in stopping 151 other violations in others, said Mohammad Daoud, a columnist in Al Dustour. The fact that this happened in a space of four months gives indications that corruption and abuse of authority is still rife in government circles, and that the bureau has no alternative but to intensify its current campaign to control the situation, said the writer. Indeed financial and administranve corruption and mishandling of public funds willingly or inadvertently means either that those filling many posts are incompetent and unfit to handle their duties or that the government's leniency in applying strict regulations and punishing the culprits is still far from being terminated, said the writer. The writer urged the government to give more powers to the bureau and more independence to remain outside the sphere of any party's influences so as to be able to serve the nation

HUMAN RIGHTS FILE

By Waleed Sadi

Time to address economic woes

HUMAN RIGHTS activists are often obsessed with political and civil rights and ignore economic social and cultural rights as articulated in the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (ICESR). Here in Jordan, as elsewhere in the Third World, the later category of human rights are just as pressing if not more pressing than the former kind. With poverty rampant and the number of poverty-stricken people on the rise, the continued neglect of economic issues as they relate to the rank and file of Jordanians threatens to undermine the democratie process itself and in turn the stability and security of the

We all know also that poverty, if neglected, could contribute to crime and other social disorders. That we have a higher than usual crime rate in the country is a foregone conclusion. When people have no opportunity to earn a living in a decent way, they naturally opt for violence and crime to fill their empty stomachs and feed their children. I don't think there are two Jordanians who would disagree on these propositions even though there is always disagreement about the extent of poverty in the country. High officials are usually more concerned with macro economic planning and are the least concerned about micro economic programmes that have the most immediate impact on the majority of the people in this country.

So while we are busy fulfilling the economic and financial prescription of the World Bank, the empty stomachs in the Kingdom remain empty and in the process the minds and souls of the affected people become more and more poisoned. I dare say that if poverty in Jordan is not treated and treated quickly, it may undermine even what we proudly achieved in the peace process. This growing crisis goes on unabated because of the continuing preoccupation of the government with more grandiose schemes and plans of the government with more grandous schemes and plans for the country. I don't think we can afford to wait for the so-called peace dividend to feed our people because that may take longer than is healthy for the country. I believe there is a good case for starting the process of economic healing at the grass roots level before the crisis gets out of

Some of our concerned officials should make a point of visiting some of the homes of the poor among us in order to begin to relate to them and sympathise with their plight.

Some 20 years ago, the Internanonal Labour Office in Geneva (ILO) made a very serious recommendation to countries of the world on how to go about their economie planning and rearrange their economic priorities. In so many words, the ILO called on the member states to think first and foremost about their people and their immediate needs when they embark on chartering their future course in economie planning. When there is poverty and mass unemplayment, as is the case here in Jordan, the ILO recommended that the affected countries make the creation of jobs the immediate objective of their planning.

I cannot think of a better prescription to the plight of Jurdanians than the two-decade old panacea proposed by the ILO. In other words, instead of concentrating only on projects that are economically feasible, countries suffering from high unemployment problems should create work opportunities even though there appears to be no long-term viability for such opportunities.

Ending unemployment and alleviating poverty must therefore be the immediate objectives of our government. There are no signs that the concerned officials are even thinking along these terms. Our over-occupation with the "orders" of the International Monetary Fund are making us oblivious to the plight of the most needy amongst us. This negligence, which is anything but benign, must stop if we wish to harvest the full fruits of the peace process.

Job creating projects are not difficult to identify and establish. They need to be labour-intensive industries or construction programmes. Take, for example, Amman. There is a lot that could be done to clean it up by employing thousands of jobless people. The streets and side walks of the capital are in a mess and could use idle hands to put them in proper shape. Forestation of the country can be best advanced by labourers using simple tools. No matter what we decide to chose as means to employ our people, we must do it now and not later.

After Oslo: a year of disappointment

By Laika Dajani

SEPTEMBER MARKED the first anniversary of the signing of the Oslo Accords between Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in Washington. There was mncb media hype to the event, with globally televised images of beaming Israelis and Palestinians. Israelis in Jerusalem were shown wearing "peace" T-shirts, while Palestinians in Jericho were shown waving hastily made national flags. There was certainly a strong current of optimism and a general feeling that the Oslo Declaration of Principles (DOP) could really

The DOP was vague enough, and blunt enough, to reassure Israelis that Mr. Rabin was handing the occupied territories to Mr. Arafat on a silver plate; and it was specific enough for Mr. Arafat to deem it a step in the right direction for his goal of a future Palestinian state. Issues such as free and fair elections, transfer of power, public order and security, economie cooperation, Israeli military redeployment and economic development, were all covered somewhat briefly in print, with enough leeway for Israel to put the brakes on the whole process if these issues were not adequately resolved. Since the September ceremony, 12 months of frantic negonations have ensued with Mr. Rabin, Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, Mr. Arafat and his evertightening entourage grap-pling frantically with the implementation of the declaration's articles. There has been disagreement, disappointment and disillusionment on both sides.

The first four months heralded little progress. There were several highlevel meetings to discuss the nitty-gritty of the declaration, but the net result of such contact yielded very little for the Palestinians on the ground in the territories. Progress was marked more by the founding of various Palestinian organisations to deal with promises of aid from international donors such as the Council for Development and Reconstruction (PEC-DAR). Even his organisation experienced severe birth pains, with Mr. Arafat determined to maintain control, and appointing loyalists to positions for which they were far from qualified. The obvious confusion of Mr. Arafat, and the perception that the PLO was an entity in shambles, lessened the buoyant optimism of potential donors, the result being that very little aid materialised. Although in the territories Palestinian flags were seen legally displayed for the first time, life continued as usual; there was no mass exodus of the Israeli forces from Gaza, nor from Jericho. The Dec. 13 date for the start of a gradual withdrawal came and went, with no grand exit even hinted at. As for the Israelis, the increasing disarray on Mr. Arafat's side only confirmed the worst fears of Israeli sceptics. Even Mr. Peres, more gentle and accommodating than Mr. Rabin, grew frustrated with what many saw as footdragging on the Palestinian side. Israel had already committed itself on paper to a withdrawal from Gaza and Jericho and was in no mood to bail out the other

February brongbt a potential nightmare scenar-io. Baruch Goldstein's massacre of Palestinians in Hebron threatened to break the tenuous thread holding the talks together. Militant Israeli settlers eagerly sponted phrases such as "An Arab is not worth one Jewish finger-nail," and Palestinians cried out for West Bank settlers to be brought to justice. Yet, to the credit of both sides, the massacre failed to seriously disrupt the ongoing negotiations. Mr. Rabin tried to appease Palestinians by tracking down several violently racist settlers and make a speech condemning such extremists. Palestinians, although outraged, were only able to mutter their dissatisfaction. The next momentous event was in May, with the the opportunity to exercise Jericho First agreement. Broadcast live by satellite, the world for the first time watched the fragility of Mr. Arafar's position as he publicly refused to sign the map of the Jericho area. After back-stage bullying by President Hosni Mnbarak, who supposedly threatened that Mr. Arafat would never set foot in Egypt again if he did not acquiesce, Mr. Arafat grudgingly signed on the dotted line. The agreement, despite its hiccups, did speed up the Israeli with-drawal, for it required Israeli forces to evacuate their military bases within three weeks. Soon afterwards, Palestinian police, once members of the PLO's exiled standing army, arrived inbilantly in Gaza and Jericho. Although the Palestinian police force is a significant step, the summer months have revealed a vast web of incompentence on the part of Mr. Arafat and growing disillusionment amongst even those who form part of his elose-knit circles of loyalists. Mr. Arafat has continued to stress the issue of Jerusalem in negotiations, although this way was clearly defined in the DOP as a topic to be addressed "not later than the beginning of the third year of the interim period." His insistence only further irks Mr. Rabin who, when the two meet, tries to control his overwhelming dislike. Mr. Arafat's behaviour reeks of unprofessionalism, a very dangerous trait for a man in a position of leadership during a period of tumultous transition.

Arafat's credibility in doubt

In fact, he looks increasingly desperate. As a revolutionary in exile, he was brilliant at stirring up the nationalist fevour necessary to bold a people's collective consciousness together. The PLO thrived on its piethora of organisations, all designed to cement the national identity into a coherent form. But Mr. Arafat was never a true statesman; be never had the skills, the far-sightedness or production of the second secon

dealing with his greatest challenge, which could and should be to establish a Palestinian entity, demo-cratic in principle and democratic in action.

It is true that Gaza and Jericho are no longer subject to Israeli military patrols, and it is true that one feels a sense of freedom unknown before. But this is not Arafat's doing, merely the implementation of some basic tenets in the Gaza-Jerieho agreement. Mr. Arafat's role must be to give reassurance to those full of doubts; and there are many full of misgivings on the Israeli, the Palestinian and the foreign donor sides. The Palestinians left behind in 1967 are not the same as those in 1994. Twentyseven years of occupation bave hardened them, as well as opening their eyes. The new generation inside the territories does not want an incompetent authority figure to dictate to them; they have suffered too long for that to be their reward.

Mr. Arafat has little time to recover from his seriously undermined credibility. He must stick to the DOP and discuss the various issues at the appropriate time, thereby inspiring more confidence in Mr. Rabin and foreign donors; he must appoint qualified professional individuals loyal to the success of the agreement, not to himself; and he must listen to the pulse of his Palestinian constitutency. The Palestinians need an individual of exceptional maturity, wisdom and vision to take them through to independence; so far, Mr. Arafat has proved sorely lacking in such qualities. He must either acquire them or gracefully step down for others more competent to fill his place. If not, the DOP may become another obsolete document, of interest for its failure rather than for its success.

Laika Dajani a Palestinian freelance writer living in London. The article is reprinted from Middle East International.

Working for sustainable development

By Janette Ryan

A RANGE of conferences and consultative processes will be held around the world in the coming months to prepare for the Commisto prepare for the Commission on Sustainable Development's (CSD) third session in April next year.

The 1995 session is likely to be controversial as it will assess progress made since United Nations Conference on the Environment and Development (UNCED) on the sustainable development issues associated with land resource use, including

In addition to these conferences, the CSD's two working groups, the finance group and a new working group set up to examine all the sectoral issues on the CSD's agenda in 1995 will meet early next year.

This follow a solid start at its second session in New York in May which monitored progress made by the international community in implementing Agenda 21 since the U.N. Conference on the Environment and Development in 1992.

A compromise deal was struck between the developed and developing comtries which revised the mandate of the finance working group, discon-tinued the technology transfer working group and established a new group which was given a one-year mandate to look at forests, land resources, biodiversity and desertification. Both working groups will meet for one week in early 1995. The New York meeting was the first to review progress on Agenda 21 under the four-year the-matic work programme adopted by the CSD in 1993.

The Australian Minister for Environment Sport and Territories, Senator John Faulkner was one of more than 40 ministers whose participation in a high-level segment at the end of the session added political impetus to the "new and emerging issnes" which were identified as requiring further work. These were trade and the environment, changing consumption and production patterns and the need to develop indicators of sustainability to help measure progress. To panel discussions beld in the margins of the high level segment resulted in lively debate on the issues of women and sustainable development, and sustainable development and the есопоту.

Toxic chemicals

The commission focused on the Agenda 21 chapters dealing with health, human settlements, freshwater, toxie chemicals, hazardous wastes and radioactive wastes (sectoral issues) as well as progress in relation to the availability of financial resources, mansfer of technology to developing consumption and production patterns (cross-sectoral

In the review of progress on financial resources and technology transfer, developing countries made clear their concerns that donor countries had not lived up to the Rio commitments on new and additional resources. The G-7 regarded the plenishment of the Global Environment Facility as "a first step at a minimum level." On finance, the CSD noted that it would be useful to develop a matrix of economie policy options and financial instruments. On the transfer of environmentally sound technology, the commission recognised the primary role of the private sector and the role of governments in establishing the enabling conditions. The commission set out a menn of practical and innovative measures to enhance the np-take of appropriate technology in developing countries which recognised the benefits of adequate intellectual property protection, a free and open trading system, and of building institutional capacity. The commission acknowledged the differentiated responsibilities and developing conntries to address unsustainable patterns of consumption and production and called on all governments to consider _ taking a range of measures.

Two major themes dominated the discussion on trade and the environment: the nature and extent of the CSD's role on trade and the environment, and the need for the CSD to take a "balanced" view of the issues involved, including the need for further work on the environmental pacts of trade policies.

The commission decided to review annually developments in the area of trade, development and environment. Its role would be to identify possible gaps in work and promote coordination among the main These are the GATT/World Trade Organisation, the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD), the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) and the OECD.

The commission took a number of decisions on sectoral issues, endorsed action programme established by key U.N. bodies, identified issues requiring further attention by governments and international organisations, agreed on perspectives of the CSD on factors to be taken into account in further work and nominated appropriate agencies within the U.N. system to carry out that work.

LETTERS

Caution is imperative

To the Editor:

THE ARTICLE "Legal experts study papers drawn up in Eilat negotiations (Jordan Times, Oct. 15)" grabbed my

We are all familiar with the infamous word "the", which changed history by not showing up in front of "Arab lands" to be withdrawing from by Israel, according to a United Nations resolution after the 1967 war.

So we all know the impact of just one three letter word, and I expect that the text of a peace treaty will be a complex document with a lot of issues to be addressed; and since that the majority of us are not privy to the mechanics which lead to such a historical document, and with all due respect to our negoriators and legal experts who are scrutinising these documents, we give a word of caution to. be extra vigilant in their scrutiny so as not to slip into a situation of immense consequences.

It is essential that such careful scrutiny be applied to every text in Arabic, English, Hebrew, or any other language used.

And since we are not going to be the judges if a dispute occurs in the future, it is not enough to just satisfy ourselves in these matters; it may be prudent that the services of qualified international and independent consultants be employed to review these documents to detect any loopholes and rectify them before signing.

Thank you.

Emile Rihani, Amman

The Jordan Times welcomes letters and contributions from its readers on any subject they wish to tackle. Letters intended for publication, however, should contain the writer's full name and preferably address as well. Names can be withheld only upon request and under special circumstances. Letters are subject to editing. The newspaper is not responsible for the return of unused manuscripts.

Speakership race narrows down

(Continued from page 1)

changed" as far as his deci- Mr. Masri has lost a lot of sion to contest the elections as a result of Mr. Masri's as House speaker.

He said he feels he has fulfilled all his obligations towards Mr. Masri as "a friend and as a colleague" before declaring his candidacy, noting he decided to run after Mr. Masri said he would not.

As late as last week, he said, Mr. Masri had confirmed to him he was not going to run.

'I take a stand and I commit myself to it. I will not disappoint the people who supported me and I will continue to work to win the confidence of others," Mr. Srour told the Jordan Times.

"In fighting elections," he said, "what matters is not losing elections but losing the stands and the confidence of others in the heat of the One deputy told the Jordan Times that the image of Mr. Masri among many deputies "has been shaken due to his hesitancy and inability to take a decisive decision. He also questioned the motives behind the Islamists' support for him in light of their announced decision that they will not vote for a candidate who supports the peace process with Israel.

Mr. Mansour said, however, that the IAF had a num-ber of objectives and it would vote for the candidates whom it sees close to these goals, noting that the IAF and a limited number of other deputies have an ideological political capital by basing his candidacy on the support of decision to seek a new term Islamists who made a tactical decision to support him to prove themselves as the swing voters, others say Mr. Masti's reversal of decision was a natural response to the wish of many deputies and will not affect his standing in the House. Mr. Masri was not available for comment on accusations that his counting on the support of the Islamists who do not see eye to eye with him on a number of issues would weaken him political-

Deputies said the chances of Mr. Sronr were as good as those of Mr. Masri, noting that the Northern Bedouin deputy could count on the support of the majority of the members of his bloc, the 10member National Bloc and the National Action Front which is headed by Deputy Abdul Hadi Majali and includes about 20 members. Parllamentary sources said Mr. Srour would also be supported by Deputy Mohammed Abu Oleim who withdrew his candidacy in his favour as well as the fourmember Brotherhood bloc.

Influential centrist Deputy Abdul Karim Kabariti said: We will support the candidate whose stands are in harmony with his declared alliances and who has a cause, not the one who can be used by others."

"I made a commitment in front of my colleagues to contest the elections. They stand against the talks.

While one deputy from the Democratic Coalition said Mr. Srour.

Gazans stage violent protest

(Continued from page 1)

Strip and soldiers withdrew . Mr. Arafai's office. The several hundred metres to- atmosphere in Gaza was still wards the Jewish settlement of Netzarim.

Palestinian police dispersed the students without

Asked about the decision not to confront the students. Israeli Deputy Defence Minister Mordechai Gur told Israel Radio: "We want the Palestinian authority - that means (Yasser) Arafat — to take care of this."

The scene along the road afterwards recalled the Palestinian uprising against israell occupation. Large stones were strewn across the road as small fires hurned. About 100 Israeli soldiers stood hy jeeps on the road to the settlement. Dozens more patrolled its perimeter fence overhead. "It was difficult but we succeeded." said an officer of the Palestinians' liaison committee with the Israeli army. The whole thing is over and luckily without casualties." In Gaza City. Palestinian police with riot shields stood at either end of the road to day leaving the hostage, an army captain and three kid-

The cabinet also decided to give soldiers free hus nickets. The hostage was kidnapped

as he tried to hitch a lift.

outside Tel Aviv last Snnday.

Mr. Rabin was quoted as telling the weekly cabinet session Sunday that "negotia-tions never ended," with the simply called the Israeli negotiating chief, Danny Rothschild, back for consulta-

Education Minister

Amnon Ruhinstein told the radio that the negotiations would be "part and parcel of our security demands," referring to Israel's demands that the PLO continue its crackdown against Hamas which opposes the peace accord.

The negotiations are over broadening a form of self-rule granted the Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho in May, as part of the

Israel-PLO peace agreement which Palestinians see as a first step towards achieving statehood in the West Bank

Tourist Minister Uzi

Baram told Israel radio:

Yasser Arafat is our only

"He received the Nobel

Peace Prize on Friday with

Yitzhak Rahin and Shimon

Peres as a reward for his courageous decision to reach an agreement with Israel," said the Labour Party dove.

ty members for "playing into the hands of the right-wing"

He attacked unnamed par-partner and we have to make and Gaza.

him stronger.

tions, army radio said.

Mr. Rabin said he had nappers dead.

Palestinians.

tense, with Palestine Liheration Organisation (PLO) and Hamas supporters openly criticising each other. There is no contact between the two sides at any level," said Mahmoud Zohar, a spokesman for Hamas in Gaza.

Since it began, the authority has been under Israel's wing but this was on paper. Now it has become a working fact. In the past week Hamas had a stunning success and the authority had

Hamas supporters consider the kidnapping operation has strengthened their move-

They see last-minute conauthority before the rescue hid on Friday as establishing a precedent whereby the Israeli government might negotiate with Hamas, albeit PLO officials say Mr. Arastaging public protests.

by calling into quesuon the negotiations with the PLO.

The Likud opposition par-ty backed Mr. Rabin's decision to launch the assault on the kidnappers' West Bank

Party leader Benjamin

Netanyahu tempered his sup-port by telling Mr. Rahin to call off the negotiations on the spread of autonomy to tacts between Israel and the and a helicopter hovered

Self-rule talks resume tomorrow

(Continued from page 1)

hideout.

nian elections.

through intermediaries.

fat is reluctant to give in to Hamas hy releasing its supporters while the group is

Future of devastated Haiti hangs on one man

Haiti's President Jean-Bertrand Aristide (right) looks at Port-au-Prince from the window of the airplane which

By Anthony Boadle Renter

PORT-AU-PRINCE -The world that watched Jean-Bertrand Aristide's joyful return to Haiti will now be watching to see if the diminutive priest can hve up to the huge hopes that have been placed in Millions of poor Haitians who see Mr. Aristide as the end to years of misery have placed their main hope for the future of the Caribbean country on the exiled president restored to power with U.S. backing on Saturday, But Mr. Aristide faces a task that would daunt anyone less determined than he as he struggles to pacify a volatile population and make visible progress in eradicating hunger, disease and illiteracy.

Three years of corrupt military rule have further devastated a country that was already the poorest in the Western hemisphere, leaving Mr. Aristide little to huild on as he moves tomeet his people's ex-pectations of food and jobs. U.S.-led trade sanctions aimed at forcing Haiti's military leaders from power have intensified the country's grinding poverty. Tens of thousands of people have been thrown out of work, peasants contributing to the country's biggest environ-mental problem have stripped hillsides of trees to make charcoal and millions have gone without medical care as clinics and hospitals brought him back from his three-year exile in the U.S. orday. At left is U.S. Secretary of State Warren

In a country where education is available only to those with money, only about two in 10 Haitians can read and write and one out of seven relies on international food handouts to stay alive.

The international community is responded with an emergency plan to pump millions of dollars into Haiti's ravaged economy to help the troubled Caribbean country get quickly back on its feet and avert

Mr. Aristide can expect

$I billion in international aid to flow into Haiti over the next five years to help feed the population, build schools and hospitals and revive a morihund eco-

They spent too much time killing people and not enough renewing agricul-ture," said Mr. Aristide adviser Michael Levy of Haiti's military leaders. "The physical state they left thing and had a "tremendous challenge" to recover state finances ruined by corruption and mediately lifting economic embargos that paralysed Haiti's economy and shut down its industries.

Christopher (AFP photo)

the arm. U.N. sanctions were ending one minute after midnight on Saturday.

But politically, the popular priest who is generally idolised by Hait's poor masses and hated by many of the rich elite has little organised backing remaining because many of his activists have either been killed or sent into hiding or exile in a systematic campaign by the military regime to stamp out pro-Aristide

Institutions such as the army and police will need major overhauls to weed out those responsible for human rights abuses since the military coup that top-pled Mr. Aristide in 1991. The Roman Catholic priest appealed for national reconciliation on arrival, hoping to cool the thirst of revenge among Haitian terrorised by the military that could lead to continued groups remain well armed and have just hidden their guns to avoid confiscation by U.S. troops.

lems will be resolved with President Aristide," said Michael Kency in Cite Soleil, Port-an-Prince's

"Everyone here thinks that there will be work and

U.S. 'will not wait' for U.N.

(Continued from page 1)

Observer Mission (UN-IKOM), which patrols the border demilitarised zone (DMZ), says his men never

"We have not seen a single general said.

Mr. Christopher on Sunday also ruled out lifting sanctions against Iraq, saying he saw no reason to grant Baghdad any favours.

There's no occasion for the easing of sanctions, there's no occasion for doing (Iraq) any favours at the present time," Mr. Christopher told NBC.

Russia joined in approving the Security Council Resolu-tion shortly before midnight on Sunday after a standoff with the United States that lasted nearly all of Saturday.

The council's unity, however, eracked within seconds of the vote on the question of use of force. The United States said the resolution carried the use of force while Russia disagreed publicly, French envoys disagreed privately and Britain remained neutral. The resolution does not make any explicit mention of the use of force or include such catch words as "all necessary means," although it was adopted under Chapter 7 of the U.N. Charter, which Madeleine Alhright, delighted at the vote, said: "Let me assure this council that... my government will take all appropriate action if Iraq fails to comply with the de-

Asked if this meant the use of force, she said: "Of course

But Russia's deputy ambassador, Vasili Sidorov.

told the council: "I wish to stress in particular that the resolution does not contain provisions which could have served as a justification to conduct punitive strikes or

Britain's ambassador,

David Hannay, who is cur-rent council president, said it was "a matter for individual states to construe their position. I think it would be an unwise person who assumed that Iraq could do almost anything it wished without

. Ms. Alhright was deter-

mands of this resolution," absolutely."

using force."

the West Bank and Palestiimplies enforcement action. The preamble of the docu-Communications Minister ment threatens "serious con-Shulamit Aloni of the leftsequences" hut diplomats wing Meretz party, told the said the vote would not have radio a majority of ministers been unanimous if the counwanted the Cairo talks to cil had clearly authorised force to bomh troop movestart as soon as possible. ments within Iraqi territory. U.S. Amhassador

She also criticised Mr. Rabin for deciding the assault alone without any consultations, even with his inner cahinet.

Foreign Minister Shimon Peres was among those in favour of an early return to the negotiating table.

"Arafat acted properly by ordering the Palestinian police to carry out a major search operation to find the soldiers and the Hamas kidnappers," Mr. Peres told the Haaretz newspaper.

But he added: "We have to wage war on terrorism and carry on with the peace process at the same time."

Deputy Foreign Minister Yossi Beilin stressed: "You could not hand Hamas a better gift than to refuse to resume the talks." Environment Minister Yossi Sarid lined up behind Mr. Rahin. He urged an indepth review of measures taken by the PNA against Hamas before deciding when to return to the negotiations strong U.N. Iraq-Kuwait vote hefore midnight Saturday. She succeeded at 11:33 p.m. EDT (0333 GMT).

Iraq. Mr. Juppe, who is touring Russia fought a rear-guard action to delay the vote until Foreign Minister Andre Kozyrev arrived in New York talks he held in Baghdad. He obtained a promise by Iraq finally to recognise Kuwait's sovereignty and its new U.N. demarcated borders. In return, he offered to try to persuade the Security Council to ease sanctions which for the past four years have barred the sale of Iraqi

Mr. Kozyrev, and Iraq Deputy Prime Minister Tareq Aziz will take part in another Security Council meeting on the Iraqi situation scheduled for Monday.

In exchange for the Russian vote, the resolution welcomes all diplomatic and other efforts to resolve the crisis and notes that Iraq was ready to recognise Kuwait. But it also stresses that Baghdad has to do this in "full and formal constitutional procedures.

This means Iraq's Revolutionary Command Conncil and other top bodies must formally recognise Kuwait and its borders.

Mr. Kozyrev left Jeddah Sunday for U.N. headquarters in New York saying he hoped to patch up the rift with the United States.

"We are prohably going to reach a common position," Mr. Kozyrev told reporters. He was due to meet Monday in New York with Mr. Christopher.

The United States has rejected an Iraqi-Russian proposal in which Iraq would recognise Kuwait in exchange for Russian help in lifting the sanctions against Baghdad.

provide explanations to all the questions the United States might raise" about the Iraqi-Russian proposal. He praised Iraq's offer to

Mr. Kozyrev said he would recognise Knwait as "a step in the right direction with a view to guaranteeing the security and stability of Kuwait and the region." Saudi King Fahd, who met with Mr. Kozyrev, said Iraq's recent troop build-up near the Kuwaiti border "should. not be rewarded with a lifting of sanctions," according to the Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud Al Faisal. France hailed the U.N. resolution restricting Iraqi military moves near Kuwait. urged Baghdad to recognise the emirate and denied there was rift between Paris and mined to push through the Washington.

Speaking at a news conference in the United Arah Emirates, French Foreign Minister Alain Juppe said-formal Iraqi recognition of Kuwait's international boundaries was a pre-requisite for lifting the crippling sanctions against

Gulf states, said the Security Council might consider rea six-month trial period of verifying Iraq's cooperation with U.N. operations to monitor its weapons prog-

"After receiving a report from the disarmament committee and the Sceurity Council takes into account Iraq's recognition of Kuwait, it will be possible that the international body will discuss lifting the sanctions," he

"But the preliminary con-dition is obviously very clear. Iraq must recognise Kuwait and its international border without any preconditions or deception.

"I wold like to express satisfaction with the latest Security Council resolution, which crowned all diplomatic efforts exerted to stave off a military confrontation in the Mr. Juppe said.

"It is a good resolution and it denounces without any ambiguity the recent Iraqi military movements near the Knwaiti border. France has participated in preparing that resolution and this shows there is no crisis with the United States except in the minds of those who want a

Mr. Juppe said the resolution, number 949, provided a framework for allied action in the region but did not include any specific mechanism to deter Iraq from repeating its 1990 invasion.

Baghdad meanwhile dismissed Resolution 949, calling it a "face-saving" exercise by the United States.

An Iraqi official said on condition of anonymity "this resolution is face-saving for the United States after they showed their military might. "It is a moderate resolution. It is a normal reaction after this crisis," another official said. Radio Baghdad expressed satisfaction that the United said a city centre shopkeeper.

Nations did not require Iraq to give the U.N. secretary general two weeks' advance notice of troop movements in the south, as originally demanded by the United States. Baghdad residents, worn down by four years of crippling U.N. sanctions, said the camp in south Lehanon. resolution would not make much difference. "One more resolution or less, what is that going to change? We will just have to tighten our belts a bit more,"

the ministries in is symbolic of the destruction that has been wreaked upon Haiti since the coup."

He said the new government was starting from no-provide water and food to the population. The international community that pressured the military to relinquish power for three years has come to Mr. Aristide's aid by imIn an immediate shot in

In addition, many Hai-tians fear that paramilitary "We trust all our prob-most wretched slum.

all will improve," added the 22-year-old man who never had a job. "But Aristide is

Palestinian refugee Um Hussein (centre), hearing the news of the death of her daughter sleeps next to her friend after fainting upon (photo by Mariam Shahin) Refugees on the sidewalk

By Mariam Shahin

Jordan Times Staff Reporter

BEIRUT - On a sidewalk, three blocs away from the American University of Beirut, stand the headquarters for the United Nations Relief and Work Agency for Palestine Refugees (UNRWA). For the past 46 years the U.N. agency has served both as symbol and reminder of the continuity of the Palestine refugees problem which was created when the state of Israel came into existence in 1948. Almost three years after peace talks between Arabs and Israelis began the issue of refugees has not been openly discussed.

Some of the manifestation of the problem of the Palestine refugees are on the streets of Beirut, a city beginning to reconstruct its social and infrastructural fabric after almost 16 years of civil war and sectarian

On the sidewalk outside the UNRWA headquarters in west Beirut about 30 women squat in cardboard boxes. They have recently been expelled from the half-built hotel rooms - at the Federal Hotel, where they squatted for the past

14 years. Most of the street residents are women over 35 years of age. They are former residents of refugee camps long destroyed by years of war like Tel-a-Zaatar, which was destroyed in 1976 and Jisre Al Basha and the Nahatea

The Lebanese authorities evicted these squatters, about 26 families, from the Federal Hotel and, according to the Lehanese press, plan to evict some 6000 squatters in Beirut altogether. The people on the street say they were evicted by force and have no place to go except the street since their former homes in the now destroyed refugee camps no longer

The Lebanese authorities say that each family was offered some $1000 to $5000 to find alternative

bousing. "One thousand dollars or five thousand dollars cannot secure alternative housing in a city where the price of cardboard to build a but may cost me a thousand dollars" says. Widad Hamad, 35, a former Tel-a-Zataar resident who is one of the women who now live on the pavement outside

"We want a new camp not a thousand dollars we want a place to live and we want work permits something no one is even discussing." says Ms. Hamad. "We live on the street and some people claim we are troublemakers. They don't know that we suffer daily here; we get verbally assaulted and spat at by passers by. This is not a lazy existence;

the UNRWA headquarters.

this is hell." Um Hussein, 56, sits next to Widad Hamad. She like Widad, is a sidewalk squatter and a former Tel-a-Zataar resident. Her life story is a particularly sad one hut somehow typical of a Palestine refugee's existence in Lebanon during the

"I am from Safad," says Um Hussein. "I was born in Safad and in 1948 we fled the fighting and took refuge in Lehanon. We were never allowed to return to Safad." "During the massacre at last two decades.

Tel-a-Zataar, I lost my hus-

hand, two sons and one daughter. One son and one danghter were injured. My son sells gum on the streets. be limps; my daughter re-ceived a head injury and became mentally retarded. She is in hospital," explains

Um Hussein. . "After Tel-a-Zataar we moved to Damour, my two sons worked with the resistance. One is in Denmark now. They relocated him but we are not allowed to join him," says Um Hussein of her som Omar, 32, who was given refugee status by the Danish government. "In 1982 we moved to the Federal after life in Damour was no longer possible hecause of the fighting there." "In August we were evicted and now we live on the streets." During the interview an ambulance arrives with had news for Um Hussein, her hospitalised daughter, Lamia, 30, has died. Hit hy a hullet in the head in 1976. Lamia has suffered from brain injury since then and was in and out of hospitals.

Um Hussein screams and then faints on the sidewalk. A young man, who is part of the squatter community, begins to talk of bringing Lamia's body out of the hospital. "She is there illegally because we, as refugees, are not supposed to have access to public hospitals unless we pay," says Fathi Musa. "We can't pay so we will not be able to wash her body in the hospital morgue as is Muslim custom. We will bring her here to the sidewalk and wash cides. Lamia will be buried in the martyrs cemetery along with thousands of other victions of war and exile.

her body here," Fathi de-

China '95 reform target: Wheezing state industry

Sunday that its thousands of wheezing state factories would be the main target of economic reform in 1995 and laid out plans to build a modern capitalist-style enterprise

"China will shift its focus of reform to state-owned enterprises next year, with the aim to establish a modern enterprise system," State Councillor Li Tieying

"Bold experiments are necessary to deepen reforms in line with urban development strategies and practical issues in local economies. the People's Daily quoted Mr. Li as saying.
Mr. Li, a member of the ruling Communist Party Politburo who oversees economic restructuring, was quoted by the official People's Daily in the northwestern tourism centre of Xian as bemoaning industry's stale ideas and lack of compention.

"We must be armed with fresh ideas for development and create new systems in reform. Mr. Li said. "Advantage in a good system comes first in compenhon.

. Thousands of loss-making state plants nanonwide are under orders to turn themselves around or face bankruptcy, but Beijmg bas held off on widespread liquidations for fear of unrest if millions of workers are

Yet such factories, which grind out products no one wants, continue to be the leading cause of China's budget deficits, soaking up billions of dollars in subsidies and state loans that rarely are

Mr. Li's presence in Xian drove bome Beijing's strategy of growing industry by exploiting resources in the vast, less populated west rather than pouring new investment into the eastern coastal province, where reform has taken hold.

But be said Beijing was looking for ways to "inte-grate public ownership with the market economy," in-dicating that officials are still nervous about losing their grip on state industry, a cornerstone of Communist Party

China's economic woes were further highlighted by a separate report in the China Daily, which said a year-old and-inflationary crackdown on overheated state investment in fixed assets had fallen far short of targets.

In the first eight months of 1994, it said, investment by state institutions in fixed assets ballooned 44 per cent over the 1993 period to $57.7 billion, with much of the growth on the east coast. according to the State Statisnical Bureau.

Worse yet, the growth rate accelerated in July and August after months of slowing. Inflation has been raging at a year-on-year 27 per cent, far above this year's 10 per cent target, fuelled by 17 per cent industrial growth and 13 per cent overall economic

Mr. Li said curbing state industrial losses meant striking a balance between public ownership and the market, a cautious approach reflecting Beijing's fear of losing control over state industry.

Many state factories bave raised badly needed capital by issuing equity sbares to the public, but Beijing bas gener-ally limited public shareholding to less than 50 per cent. thereby retaining state con-

The problem with state ownership, economists say, is that managers pay more attention to their state masters than to the market and to streamlining production, so losses mount.

The People's Daily account of Mr. Li's remarks gave only a vague outline of his "modern enterprise system" but said it involved "coordinated and comprehensive reforms" in social security and market circulation and a transformation of government functions. China next year "will strive to further improve the system of macro-management in accordance with demands of economic development and structural readjustment," Mr. Li said.

U.N. chief warns of critical financial situation, proposes specific measures

NEW YORK (Agencies) — In his address before the General Assembly, the secretary-general outlined once again the seriousness of the current U.N. financial the scale of assessments.
With regard to the U.N.'s situation and called upon member states to work together at the highest political levels to restore the nisarion, to enable it to perform the functions for which it was created. He cited examples to outline the gravity of the situa-

At the end of August. the U.N.'s debts included S1 billion owed to 70 member states for their troop and equipment contribution to peacekeeping missions and $400 million owed to vendors and suppliers.

financial stability of the orga-

— By the end of August. only 56 member states had paid their regular budget assessment in full, and 70 member states had not made any payment toward their 1994 regular budget assessment. In total, member states owed the U.N. $3.2 billion in unpaid assessment to the peacekeeping and regular budgets.

In recent weeks, a number of member states have made substantial payments which have enabled the U.N. to

To overcome this financial crisis, the secretary-general addressed two areas where improvements could be made: The cash reserves and depleted cash reserves, specific measures could be taken to strengthen the organisanon's capital base, including: - Improving the organisanon's cash management sys-tem, concentrating its bank

- Shortening the time between approval of peacekeeping budgets and the sending out of assessment letters to member states.

- Charging member states interest on arrears to encourage a more positive casb

- Minimising the need for cash by accepting nonfinancial contributions (for example, equipment or personnel) as a set-off against member states's contributions, within a specific framework.

Removing the "time gap" in peacekeeping missions — for example, by assessing member states a portion of the costs of a mission at the time the mission is initiated or extended. based on overall cost estidinar "A kilogramme of sugar is 400 dinars, but my salary is just 1,000 dinars a month," a government employee said.

market. People just hope prices will crash if Iraq succeeds in efforts to persuade the Security Council to ease the embargo." a trader said. "The business community

"There is little activity in reads that the leadership is determined to alleviate suffering. If recognition of Kuwait is no problem, other issues will surely be easier to tackle." he added. But they said the dinar would sink to new lows and prices shoot up if it became clear sanctions would remain.

creases.

But the system allowed payrolls to continue to swell

Japan's lifetime employment system faces turning point warn that Japanese unemployment rates may keep ris-ing as firms, looking to establish new cheaper production units overseas, slash more

The Japan Research Institute forecasts that the unemployment rate will reach 6.4

per cent, the loss of 3.56

million jobs, by 2000 if Japanese companies continue shifting production bases

The private institute said

recent rises of the yen would accelerate the shifting of Japanese factories overseas.

boosting the rano of overseas production from 6.4 per cent

last year to about 10 per cent

doubling in six years.

jobs at home.

abroad.

TOKYO (AFP) - As Japan looks for ways to cope with the economic slowdown. businessmen here are forced to accept that the good old days of a job guaranteed for life are coming to an end as the recession bites.

"A large number of my colleagues are realising that the lifetime employment system will be replaced by something like an ability-oriented one in the near future," said Hirokatsu Takuwa, working for the personnel division of an Osaka-based desk manufacturer.

"When we started the job five years ago, everybody still believed they would and could work for the same company for the rest of their Mr. Takuwa added. "But time has gradually changed that."

In a bid to tackle the worst recession in decades bere, Japanese companies bave resorted to cutting wages, promoting early retirement and squeezing recruitment.
Annual incomes of Japanese businessmen dropped for the first time in 45 years in 1993, down 0.6 per cent form the previous year to $45,220.

The Tokyo Shoko Re-search said 1,675 listed companies cut some 139,000 iobs in the six months to March by encouraging workers to ren're early and cutting back on recruitment.

Despite these efforts, the employment rate stood at three per cent in August, unchanged from the previous month, the highest level since

The lifetime employment system must be broken in favour of a profit-oriented economy," said Hideyasu Nasu, a senior official for Sumitomo Corp. "It worked well in the 1970s and 1980s when companies needed many people to engage in mass production. But that era is over," said Mr. Nasu.

The fast economic growth in Japan since the war was largely due to the smooth relationship between managers and employees. Both enjoyed the lifetime employment system along with promotion and wage in-

Many analysts agree, even during the recession. however, that unemployment Japan's current unemploymay ease if the economic ment rates are still much enrecovery is strong, enabling vied by other Group of Seven companies to put off scrap-ping the traditional jobs-forindustrialised nations, bur economists note that the life system. rates are higher by several percentage points if calculated by Western gauges.

Moreover, economists

But it is clear that somer or later Japan will have to accept a drastic change in its employment system. It may be mavoidable to change the current system to some extent over the next decade," said Tassashi Shifano, an economist for Yamaich Research Institute. "If the rigid system remains unchanged, the Japanese economy might be inflexible and fail to adjust to change in the world economy."

Busines

The government has said the upward trend in unemployment is "cyclical," but admits that if the economic slowdown continues, there will be an acceleration in the movement towards "structural" unemployment in the white-collar sector.

Tokyo said to use imported rice in aiding countries

TOKYO (AFP) - Japan plans to use imported rice which Japanese consumers do not like, to help developing contries, a newspaper said Sunday. The policy, which could trigger protests from rice-exporting nations, was outlined by the agriculture, forestry and fisheries ministry to the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, Social Democratic Party and New Party Sakigake, the Asahi Shimbun said.

Under an agreement reached at the Uruguay Round of global trade negonations sponsored by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, Japan is to partially open its rice market to foreign products beginning next year. But many Japanese consumers have balked at buying foreign rice.
Some 400.000 tonnes of foreign rice will be imported annually by Japan beginning in April, with the volume

HOROSCOPE

FORECAST FOR MONDAY OCTOBER 17, 1994 By Thomas S. Pierson, Astrologer, Carroll Righter Foundation

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Forget that easy chair today and get out in the busy world of activity. There are lots of opportunities to get ahead under present conditions. Take care of any physical problem you are having in the P.M.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19) Discuss business affairs with your loved ones and you can solve the simution together. Adopt a different attitude with your family.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20) Listen to what business associates have to suggest to become more efficient. Contact that person with whom you have worked before. GEMINI: (May 21 to June 21) Be sensible in expenditures so that you do not jeopardise your present monetary position. Take tonight easy with the loved ones in your life. MOON CHILDREN: (June 22 to July 21) Have more fun at recreations you enjoy and take in more sports. Join good friends. Do not spend too much money on the activities. LEO: (July 22 to August 21) Some favour for a family tie can bring within your household. VIRGO: (August 22 to September 22) Contact friends who can be of help to you. Plan the future more wisely. State your aims and desires to those who are close to you.

LIBRA: (September 23 to October 22) Discuss affairs of business with a prominent person. Do your tasks efficiently. Do nothing which could ge, you into hot water with your mate. SCORPIO: (October 23 to November 21) Be alert for a chance to gain personal desires. Get rid of anxieties at the correct sources. Control your temper from now on.

SAGITTARIUS: (November 22 to December 21) Meditate for while, then follow your bunches which have proven correct. Have a quiet talk with your mate and come to a far better understanding. CAPRICORN: (December 22 to January 20) Look to both friends and associates for assistance you need to gain your finest ambitious Keep promises you have made to others.

AQUARIUS: (January 21 to February 19) Get your tasks completed in such a manner that you get the OK from higher-ups. Entertaining should be done at a charming location.

PISCES: (February 20 to March 20) Improve your talents so that you can become more successful through them. Try to please higher-ups. Make the evening a happy one for your mate.

Birthstone of October: Opal Tourmaline

Taiwan's foreign exchange reserves to break $100b

, TAIPEI (AFP) — Taiwan's swelling foreign exchange reserves are expected to reach the $100 billion mark by the end of this year due to increased exports and higher accrued interest, officials said Sunday.

August's reserve figure hit an all-time high of $90.9 billion, making it the second highest in the world, next only to Japan, according to statistics released by the cen-, tral bank here.

The amount represented an increase of $593 million over the previous month, , bank officials said.

Combined with the gold reserves held by the central bank in various banks overseas, the foreign exchange reserves held by Taiwan amount to $96.82 bullon, they said.

Gold reserves in Angust totalled 13.565 million troy ounces valued at $5.839 billion.l

September's figures are expected to rise further following August's $7.6 billion of exports, an 18.2 per cent increase over the same period last year, and the highest in two years.

On the back of export growth and global economic revival plus a gain of some $550 million worth of monthly interest, it would not be difficult for Taiwan's holdings to pass $100 billion at the end of this year, the officials

But trade officials here have also expressed concern over the foreign exchange increases, saying that keeping money without effectively investing it will only waste the country's capital.

Also, it will increase the chances of other countries asking for financial aid from Taiwan, or refusing to repay debts, the officials said.

They said reasonable foreign exchange holdings for a country should be somewhere around three to six months of its total trade expenditure, which for Taiwan is around $40 billion.

Taiwan currently pays about $7 billion for its monthly

Taiwan to negotiate joint venture plan with Boeing

Taiwan is seeking to negotiate a joint venture deal with U.S. aircraft manufacturer Boeing to produce a 100-scater regional jet fol-lowing the failure of a deal with British Aerospace, local press reports said Sunday.

Iraq raises value of central bank has raised the official value of the dinar. which firmed on news that diplomacy was replacing military action in the Gulf.

Government licensed moneychangers in Baghdad were offering 530 dinars for a dollar Sunday, down from 550 the previous day.

"It is the first time the government has lowered the exchange rate since it authorised us to officially change money," a dealer said. But Baghdad traders said the market was still volatile with many customers preferring to wait and see if the flurry of diplomatic moves would bring. Baghdad any closer to an easing of U.N. trade sanctions.

On the black market, tradfirmer, "It is really strange., How come the government is offering more than the black market for the dollare?" one

Trading in hard currency outside official bureau is illegal and violators risk having a hand amputated if caught. Traders said the dollar fetched 650 dinars last week but it was close to 500 Sunday.

"Today, there is no black market. Those with dollars now prefer the official rate."

But owners of licensed shops said business was sluggish. "They (customers) just want to wait and see. The matter is not over yet." one

There are three rates for the dollar in Iraq. The government has not officially abandoned the pre-Gulf war rat eof $3.2 to one dinar.

But last year it permitted 39 companies in Baghdad to trade foreign currencies at rates decided by the central bank, which until now put the dinar's value well above th ebiack market.

Before this month's showdown between Iraq and the United States in Gulf the black market was 660 to the dollar while official money changers were allowed to offer a maximum of 550.

Although it is unclear what will come next after a U.N. Security Council resolution barring deployment of Irag's elite forces in the south, traders reported Sunday that food prices had fallen or at least remained steady.

"Sugar is now half its price 10 days ago," said one. But for ordinary people, hardest hit by U.N. trade sanctions imposed for Iraq's 1990 invasion of Kuwait, life was still difficult to bear.

GREAT. LOOKS START WITH ※ DAJANI'S

Gold & Gems Jewellers.

Amra Hotel: 6th Circle. Amman.

GARNET: Inspires love and devotion. Stimulates the blood flow and cleanses toxins from the body.

Peanuts

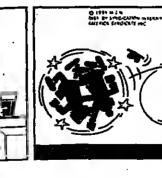

Andy Capp

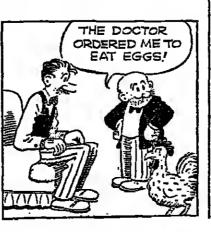

Mutt'n'Jeff

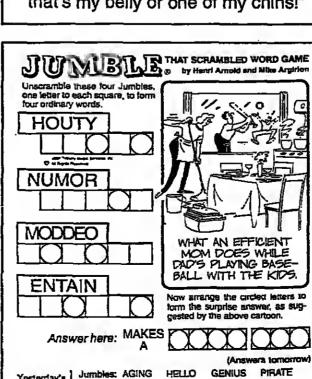

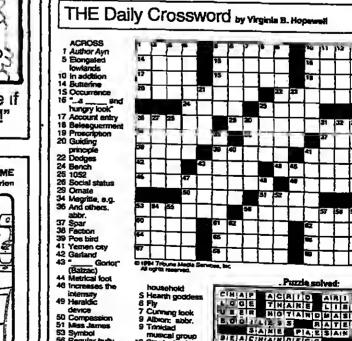

"I'm so out of shape, I can't be sure if that's my belly or one of my chins!"

Answer: When the "big one" got away it left the fisherman — REELING

2 Singing vi 3 Desideral

日は東京東東京の ublo/m

12 counti

SCOPE

212.7

ママイ

Markets

Cairo Amman Bank

Foreign Exchange Market Summary (October 10 - October 14, 1994)

AMMAN — The dollar depreciated sharply against the mark and the yen at the end of last week, while retreating modestly against sterling. It ended the week 2.61 per cent lower against the yen, 1.96 per cent lower against the mark and 0.60 per cent lower against sterling.

The U.S. unit declined against the mark and yen Monday.

while rising slightly against sterling. It retreated on news that the Iraq amhassador to the United Nations conveyed a message to the head of the U.N. Security Council, expressions and the security Council of the U.N. ing his country's decision to withdraw its forces near the Kuwaiti border.

The dollar retreated slightly against the yen Tuesday, while rising against sterling and stabilising against the mark. Reports indicated that the dollar rose during trading bours, in view of a rise in U.S. stock and bond prices. The U.S. stock and bond prices. The U.S. unit lost ground later, however, in view of concern over the release of the U.S. consumer and producer price indices later in the week.

The U.S. unit declined modestly against other major currencies Wednesday, affected by concern over the release of the U.S. PPI next day. The dollar had lost ground before the New York opening on market participants' concern over the outflow of foreign funds from U.S. financial markets into investments in yen based assets.

The dollar continued its decline against other major currencies Thursday, especially against the mark. Reports indicated that the dollar rose during earlier trading hours, affected by a rise in the U.S. stock and bond prices. Stock and bond prices rose after U.S. producer price showed a decline of 0.5 per cent in September, the higgest decline in the PPI in more than a year.

The U.S. unit declined later, however, on renewed concern over potential future U.S. inflationary pressures. It also lost ground against the mark in view of expectations that the ruling coalition in Germany might achieve good results m the elections Sunday. The U.S. unit continued its retreated against other major currencies Friday. It declined to its lowest level against the ' German currency in three months, in view of expectations that the German ruling coalition, headed by Helmut Kohl, will succeed in forming a new government in the elections held Sunday. The dollar's decline came in spite of a slight rise of 0.2 per cent in the U.S. September consumer prices. The U.S. unit, thus ended the week at 1.5173 marks, 98 yen and at $1.5960 to the pound sterling.

DEAN FINANCIAL MARKET

	4.
New York Closin U.S. Dollar	Rates for	Major Currencies	Against the

Сигтепсу	7/10/1994 Close	14:10/1994 Close	Percent Change
Sterling Pound	1.5805	1.5960	0.602
Deutsche Mark	1-5470	1.5173	1.901
Swiss Franc	1.2504	1.2625	1.425
French Franc	5.2855	5.2138	1.38$
Japanese Yen	100.61	98.05	2.618
USD Ter STG	100.01	48.05

	7/10/1994		14/10/1994
Carrency]-Meethi%)	I-Year 1%1	I-Moath -41	I-Year (%
U.S. Dellar	4.93	5,93	4.52	6.12
Sterling Pound	5.31	7.00	5.31	6.87
Deutsche Mark	4.75	5.50	4.75	5.50
Swiss Franc	3.75	4.50	3.56	4.50
French Franc	5.31	6.37	5.25	6.25

Japanese Yen

	Date: 10/10/1994
Currency	Bid	Offer
U.S. Dollar	0.6940	0.0960
Sterling Pound	1.1062	1.1117
Deutsche Mark	0.4506	0.4589
Swiss Franc	0.5490	0.5517
French Franc	0.1332	0.1339
Japanese Yen*	0.7059	0.7094
Dutch Guilder	0.4076	0.4096
Swedish Krona	449448	*****
Italian Lira"	0.0447	0.0449
Belgian Franc	*****	*****
Per 100

05	Belgian Franc			 	*****
	* Per 100
16165.181	THE JOHNAN CHART PROTOKIES	5,453	2.740	2.740	2.760
	JOHNA PETROLEUM BEFTSART	4,030	1,420	5,370	9, 370
6	JORDAN TANDITMS	3,55a	7.500	7.650	7.550
	THE INDUSTRIAL COMMERCIAL & ACRECULTURAL	465	5. 160	5,100	5,180
=	ARAM PRANCECTICAL HAMILYACTUPING	14, 372	5. 500	5,500	5.420
-	JOSEPH CERMIC INDUSTRIES	3,580	4.550	5.450	5.450
	THE JOHNAN PIPES PRINCIPACTURING	1,214	2.500	2.520	2,520
	APTRUING & MERVING	2,915	2.670	2.550	2.650
	DAR AL DANA DEVELOPMENT & INVESTMENT	18,552	14,000	15,900	14.100
	ANA INVESTMENT & IMPROVIDED TRADE	4,309	1.010	1,010	1.010
	ARRE PAPER CONFESTING & TEACHER	8.165	7.100	7.100	7,100
	JOHNAN ROCKHOOL THINDSTRIES	350	1.400	1.400	1.400
	WEIVERSAL CHERICAL INDUSTRIES	0,479	2.670	1.460	1.460
	CONTRACT LINCOLLEGE & MATCH JINCO	476	4,730	5.760	4.760
	CORNER BULDET-CHRISCOTT	10.223	0.890	0.670	0.678
	AND THE PROPERTY OF THE PARTY O	3,717	3.130	3.120	2.110
	MAN CENTER FOR PERIOR. & CHINICALS	5,228	7.900	2.890	2,520
-	TARTIFE TRAFFILENA	1,030	2.070	2.040	7.060
	DETAILS OF THE PARTY OF THE PAR	3,000	4,300	5.290	4.350
	JOHNAN DROWNTHIAL RESOURCES CO.	33,054	2.760	2.760	2.760
	GRAPO TOTAL	255, 213

A SECURE

Sweifiyeh

Flat.O.Tel

SECURITY

-HOSPITALITY

Cheers Cafe.

Hamburgers+Pizzas

ELITE CAFE'

816690

863944

La Vita Lounge

GASTRONOMY,

Heated contest expected for seats at Amman Chamber of Commerce

By Ian Atalia Special to the Jordan Times

AMMAN - The eventpacked times Jordan and the Middle East are going through is reflecting itself in the heated turnout of election candidates for the board of directors at Amman's Chamber of Commerce (ACC), according to chamber president Mohammad Asfour. "All that is going on - the

DELVING into human being's age-old teliance on plant extracts for beautifying themselves, a French company has developed a skin care programme called

Sistey which was launched

"It is not the launch of just any product, but one which is special because it is a technical product," said

Mr. Ali Qweider Director

General/Qweider Commercial Establishment which is introducing the

"The designer has devoted most of his life in developing skin care pro-ducts that others don't have. Twenty years ago he developed a product which was the best even after 10 years. He has kept himself

ATMOSPHERE CREATORS

TALK OF THE TOWN

DISCOTHEQUE

Open nightly From 9.00 P.M

Except Tuesday closed

Buy One Get Two

A Menu of Delicious Snacks

Tel. 685211 Fax. 617779 Middle East Hotel - Shmelsani

SZECHWAN GARBENS

CHINESE RESTAURANT

Typical Chinese Feeds

Skilled Crimese Chefs

Open 11-30 - 3-30 & 6:00 - Michight

Take away is available

day: Drinks All Night Long

Sisley line in Jordan.

in Jordan vestetday.

peace process, the Iraqi situation, Jordan's GATT applicanon and deregulation of its husiness laws, et. al., has aroused people, and they want to be participants," Mr. Asfour, who will be defending the presidency which he has held for seven years, told the Jordan Times.

The ACC, which counts over 26,000 members, is one of Jordan's most influential private sector institutions.

ducts that have emerged

since then. We are proud of hringing Sisley to this country," he said.

Sisley was first launched in Paris in 1975 by Huhert and Isabelle d'Ornan. The beauty treatment line is based on the properties of natural plant extracts and products is in skintaretrea-ment and 20 per cent in make up. It is the first company to introduce

'treating' make-up, starting from hair to body, including two fragrances. We create products not for the sake of introducing something new but to meet the needs of the women," explained François Trouquet, export assistant of Sisley.

who is in Amman to launch

HAVE YOUR GRILL

ENJOY A FREE

SHMEISANI TEL. 555140 - 559571

CHOOSE YOUR

SAUCE AND

SALAD BAR

BUSINESS LUNCH

FOR RENT

Deluxe Villas

& Apartments

in Amman

for further details please cal

SANABEL

REAL ESTATE

Tel. 864230

"Seventy per cent of out essential aromatic oils.

New French skin care

product launched

Representatives of its mother organisation, the Federation Jordanian Chambers of Commerce (FJCC), sit on the directors' panels of a number of key economic agencies.

Among them are the Amman Financial Market, the Social Security Corporation. the government's Panel of Supply Policy and its Encouragement of Investments Committee. Current board member

Mohammad Al-Hajj Deeh maintained the upcoming elections, due to be held on Dec. 5, were crucial due to the major changes the peace process would bring to husiness dynamics in the region, and forecast that hy close of candidate registration next Wednesday, candidates would be almost double the number which last competed for seats on the 12-member board of directors in 1990.

"Some 50 chamber members will be in the running" for the panel's 1994-98 term of office, he predicted, as opposed to the 27 who ran four years ago

As of early Saturday, 38 chamber members had registered to compete for seats on the panel, which votes in the ACC's president and vice-president from among the boatd's members.

Among the 38 was Ms. Hikmat Quteishat, the first woman to announce bet candidacy in the 71-year history of the chamber

The election also promises stiffened competition due to the fact that ACC vicepresident Haidar Murad split from the chambet faction which supported Mr. Asfour for the presidency in 1990 and formed his own faction. taking four current members of the board of directors with

Although Mt. Murad was comment, both Mr. Asfour and Mr. Deeb, leaders of the two other official factions competing in the elections. said that his split with Mr.

La Coquette Restaurant
FRENCH QUISINE ENJOY OUR

SEA POOD

LUNCHERDINNER

7 DAYS THEEK

HER 680093 / 4 HER HER Stemalani · Na Sabish HER

The Classiest Of

NEW NUE

Asfour's group, Al Amal, was not caused by any ideological differences but instead was a political move, as Mr. Murad had decided to seek the presidency of the ACC.

As of Thursday's end, the three competing factions had gathered 30 candidates between them. Mr. Murad's Al Wifaq boasted 12, including its leader. Mr. Asfout's Al Amal included himself, two other current board members and nine others, and Mr. Deeh's Al Tatweer himself and five more, with only Mr. Deeh being an incumbent.

According to Arabic daily Sawt-Al-Shaah, Mr. Deeh was moving as quickly as possible to expand the number of candidates in his fac-

Although the number of independent candidates should eventually be over 10, including Ms. Quteishat and current ACC board member Walid Al Khanh, Mr. Deeh said that "in our experience, independent candidates have little chance of being elected. Voters make their choice hased on their support for the leaders of the factions.

He also differed with the view of several Arabic dailies that the beightened turnout of candidates for the 1994-98 hoatd meant the overall atmosphere of the December elections at large would be

"I think that what teally makes elections heated is bow many voters turn ont, and I don't think much more than 5,000 will vote in this upcoming round," he said.

This meant that around only 20% of eligible ACC members would turn out to cast hallots if his analysis was correct, be pointed out.

The ACC poils should hold sizeable significance for the economic aspect of Jordan's not immediately available for political arena if the scope and influence of the chamber is taken into consideration. But so far, according to Mr. Asfout, politicising of the elections by the entry of ideological groups, which has occurred in many Jordanian trade unions and societies, bas not apparently surfaced

"ACC members seem to choose the people who will best serve their business interests, and focus mainly on the candidates' reputations of business and social success, he said.

No more China officials told fancy import cars,

BEIJING (R) - China's leaders clamped down on freewheeling officials Sun-day, ordering them to hand over their luxury cars and drive modest home-produced models.

"China's high-ranking officials should use government cars made in China," the official Xinhua News Agency said, quoting from new rules issued by the Communist Party and government.

The ruling party, hattling what it admits is crippling nationwide corruption by officials at all levels, decided at a secret meeting last month to shift its focus from building the economy to building discipline within its ranks.

Premier Li Peng tried to set an example after the army crushed the 1989 Tiananmen pro-democracy protests, handing over his Mercedes-Benz in favour of a Chinesemade Audi.

The new edict "stipulates that such deluxe imported sedan cars as Mercedes-Benz, Lincoln and Cadillac shall be replaced by Chinese-made cars." Xinhua said. Apart from the Chinese Audi, local luxury car choices are slim. Officials are loath to be seen in the leviathan red flag, a Soviet -inspired limousine . The new rules say that only government and party officials with the rank of minister or provincial governor qualify to he assigned their own car. Vice-ministers and vice their own. Thousands of lower officials now drive a late-model Mercedes-Benz, BMW or governors may use a government car but not keep one of Lexus. "No locality and departmeni is permitted to provide government cars for their leaders that break the restrictions (or) to import or huy cars in violation of govern-ment regulations," the rules

TRADES WOLDEN IN THE PARALLEL PARKET ahead of most new pro-

JR-SAT.

WALID JARRAR CO.

Tel. 776199 - 692779 Fax 781881

Service 778299

alemaine

STUDIO HAIG

JAMAL TRADING &

REAL ESTATE CO.

FOR RENT

Fumished & unfumished

Villas & Apartments

Buying & Selling

Land & Property

Tel:

688816-681113

Professional Quality in 1 Hour Service Develop your colour film at our shop and get:-

. JUMBO photo size 30% larger . Free enlargement 20 x 30 cm

Shmeisani - Opp. Grindlays Bank. Phone: 604042 Swefieh tel: 823891

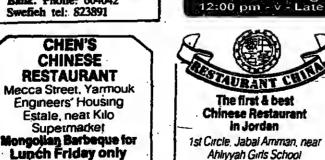

Tel: 818214

Come and laste our specialities Open daily 12:00 - 3:30 p.m.

6:30 - Midnight

Air Conditioned Hall

p.m.

7:00 - Midnight

Tel. 638968

Time Out Bar !!

Jabal Amman - first circle

apposite IRAQ EMBASSY

TEL:: 654205

China confirms sporting supremacy at conclusion of Hiroshima Games

HIROSHIMA (R) - The currain came down on the 12th Asian Games Sunday after 15 days of Chinese domination, the return of Ma's family army and a refreshing lack of drug scan-

"In the name of the Olympic Council of Asia.... I de-clare the games closed. in-toned OCA President Sheikh ahmad Al Fahad Al Sabah. bringing to an end the record gathering of 6.800 athletes and officials from 43 nations.

Amid lasers. fireworks. samurai warriors, the dousing of the games flame and a volcano erupting with doves of peace, the athletes bic farewell to the games which saw superpower China dominate with 137 gold med-als, 92 silvers and 60 bronzes.

Nobody came even close - runner-up was South Korea with 63 golds and hosts Japan had to grin and bear it as they were relegated into third place again, with 59. China's medal haul was considerably down on its 1990 games total of 183, due partly to the participation of five ex-Soviet republics for the first time, two placed tourly and fifth. Kazakhstan mined 25 golds and Uzbekistan 10, signalling a fundamental change in Asia's sporting picture bound the time Asia's top athletes gather for the next games in Bangkok in 1998.

Looking ro the future. Sheikh Ahmad said rhe size of the games would have ro be restricted.

"There should be 25 or 26 sports maximum," he said during a news conference 10 express his delight over the Humble in victory. China downplayed their domination and praised other nations for a general rise in standards at the games which saw 24 world records and 59 Asian marks broken.

"There were so many games records set I lost count." said Wei Jizhoung, of China's National Olympic Committee. This means that the level of sports in Asia has develeoped and generally speaking has risen." he said. China was robbed of a perfect end to their golden chase

Sunday, losing both vol-leyball and soccer finals, the last medals to be awarded. Unfancied Uzbekistan grabbed gold in the soccer with a 42 victory over players from China's new professional league, and Japan got some consolation from taking the volleyball title, coming back from two-set deficit to clinch victory.

In the final day of field and track. China rook four titles. including all three of the women's events, but a feud between supercoach Ma Jun-ren and the Chinese sporting establishment tarnished the gloss of the on-track action. China ended up with a tally of 22 athletics golds. 18 silvers and eight bronzes from 43 events. Only seven other nations managed to win a

Ma, whose stable of worldbeating athletes took six golds, four silvers and two bronzes, traded public barbs with the Chinese Olympic Committee's Wei after Qu Yunkia 100k the 1,500 metres tirle in four minutes 12.48 seconds, well outside the world mark she set last year of 3:50.46.

Reacting to comments by Wei that he was money-crazy and overtrained his athletes. Ma said: "So what if we overtrain, we don't take his

Ma's comment appeared a clear swipe at sports policies of the central government in Beijing which has been trying in vain to bring the maverick. but highly successful, coach

Qatari athletes could look on happily as the games flag was lowered. Mohammad Sulaiman.

celona Olympics, added the and then announcing his retrick of golds in the shorter

Fellow Oatari soldier Ibradistances garnered by the finy Gulf sheikhdom. him Ismail Muftah won the 400 metres, completing the Qarar's Talal Mansoor was Qatari golden haul. the star of the men's track events, winning the 100

The games were also demetres sprint for rhe third clared practically free from time, taking rhe 200 metres the scourge of doping.

	_			_
Final medals table
	Gold 137 63 59 25 10	Silver 92 53 68 26 11	Bronze	Total
China	137	92	60	289 179
S. Korea	63	53	63	179
Japan	59	68	80	207
Japan Kazakhstan	25	26	26	77
Uzbekistan	10	11	19	207 77 40
Iran	9	9	8	26
Chinese, Taipei India	7	12	24	43
India	4	3	15	22
Malaysia	4	2	13	19
Qatar	4	1	5	10
Indonesia	3	12	11	26 43 22 19 10 26 7
Indonesia Syria Philippines Kuwait	3	3	1	7
Philippines	3	2	8	13
Kuwait	3	1	5	9
l halland	9 7 4 4 3 3 3 3 1	11	13	25
S. Arabia	1	9 12 3 2 1 11 3 3 2 2 1 1 1 3 3 2 2 1 1 1 1	5	9
Turkmenistan	1 1 1 1 0 0 0 0 0	3	3	7
Mongolia Vietnam	1	2	6	9
Vietnam	1	2	0	3
Singapore	1	1	5	7
Hong Kong Pakistan	0	5	7	12
Pakistan	0	4	6	10
Kyrgyzstan Jordan	0	4	5	9
Jordan	0	2	2	4
UAE Sri Lanka	0	1	3	4
Sri Lanka	0	1	1	2
Macau	0	1	1	2
Bangladesh	0	1	Ō	1
Brunei	0	0	2	2
Nepal Tajikistan	0	0	2	2
Tajikistan	0	Ō	2	2
Burma	0 0 0 0	Ō	603069845351118513536057652311022222	9 25 9 7 9 3 7 12 10 9 4 4 2 2 1 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2
(Extra medals we		l in some o		-

Photo above, Japan's Toshinari Takaoka raises his fist as he crosses the line to win the men's 5,000m final Sunday at the 12th Asian Games. Takaoka finished the race in 13min 38.37 secs, setting a new Asian record to take the gold medal. Below, Qatar's Ismail Doka is carried of the track by teammates Al Dosar (left) and Ismail Multah along with officials after he was moved down by runners during the baton exchange in the third leg of the men's 4X400m relay Sunday. South Kerea won the event (AFP photos)

Officials laud drug-free games

GOLDEN CHANCE

"A ROOF FOR RENT"

A wooden furnished penthouse in Um Uthaina, near the shopping centre.

Call tel. 811288-Karim.

Asian Games received an almost perfectly clean bill of health Sunday when medical officials declared the event remarkably drug-free.

"The athletes have become aware our testing methods are very good, that is why no one is taking a chance," said Man Mohan Singh, member of the Olympic Council of Asia's (OCA) medical commission, which oversaw dope tests at Singh told Reuters that even the one positive test, returned by Thai soccer cap-tain Kadalee Sirisak, was for a stilmulant.

The commission takes a much stricter view on performance-enbancing drugs such as steroids, Singh added.

He said the solitary positive test compared favourably to the three athletes caught for drugs at the last games in Beijing in 1990.

'And when you see the magnitude of these games, you can see they were re-markably drug-free," he

The only athletes remaining to be tested are from the soccer final and eight track and field events Sunday, the final day of the games.

Their results will not be known for several days. The biggest drug incident of the past two weeks took place thousands of miles away when China's woman discus champion, who had been entered for the games, tested positive for annabolic steroids.

She was immediately dropped from the Chinese team and did not come to Hiroshi-

Jordan's delegation to Asian Games returns

AMMAN (J.T.) — The Jordanian delegation which participated in the Asian Games in Hiroshima returned home early Sunday.

The delegation, which included 15 athletes and 10 administrators and coaches. was received at the Queen Alia International Airport by Secretary General of the Ministry of Youth Majed Quteishat, representatives of sports federations and fans raising banners and perform-ing traditional dabkeh dances, to mainly welcome the taekwondo team which collected four medals at the games, thus placing Jordan 24th in the final medals standings.

Mohammad Al Zu'bi earned Jordan's first tackwondo medal when he won the silver in the flyweight class after losing to South

Korea's Chin Seung-Tae. Zu'bi, who was injured in the final, settled for second place and was unable to continue the fight.

Ammar Fahed later won another silver after losing the middleweight final bout to Kuwait's Hameed Hassan.

Yousef Abu Zeid won the Kingdom a bronze in the lightweight category and Tawfiq Nuweisir won another in the heavyweight category. Her Royal Highness Princess Haya represented the Kingdom in the equestrian competition at the games and managed to qualify to the finals, but unfortunately was unable to continue when she fell off the horse and was suffering bruises in her chest and right leg. In the shooting competition. Khaled Nagaway set a new Jordanian record and came in 13th, which qualifies him to participate in the 1996 Atlanta Olympic Games.

hospitalised for two hours.

In athletics, Awwad Srevs came in sixth in the 10,000 metres setting a new Jorda-nian record at 29 minutes 13 seconds.

Results in the karate competition were disappointing as Jordan's Na'el Oweimir was disqualified for mask abuse. When the referee opponent was the winner of the match, Oweimir hurled his mask at the fans. The referees committee decided to cancel his results and disqualify him from the competition in which he secured the fifth place.

Last Wednesday, Chairman of the Jordan Olympic Committee Muwaffaq Al Fawwaz said Jordan's participation in Hiroshima was its best ever in an Asian games.

"This was the best delegation that ever represented Jordan, whether in terms of preparation or results obtained," he told a press conference. Jordanian delegates also have been elected to the permanent committee of the Olympic Council of Asia (OCA). to the OCA's athletes committee. Dr. Fawwaz was elected to the sports committee, and Issam Al Hai Hassan to the sports medicine com-

-شفق مفروشة للإيجار FOR RENT

MODERN FURNISHED APARTMENTS

Annual Rent - Owner Tel.: 667862/642351

$\times \text{Studio of one bedroom, K & B.}
$\times \text{One bedroom living room K & B.}
$\times \text{Two bedrooms, living-dining room K & B.}
$\times \text{Two bedrooms, living-dining room K & B.}

Central heating and telephones. Location: Jabal Amman bet. 3rd & 4th Circles.

Japan sports leaders call for funds after dismal medal haul

HIROSHIMA (AFP) -Japanese sports leaders reacted to the country's mediocre medal collection at the Asian Games by calling Sunday for a special lottery to fund athletes.

Japan finished third in the medal table, behind way out leaders China, but also distanced by regional rivals South Korea for the third successive games.

China got 137 golds, the Koreans 63 and the bosts, who spent 15 billion dollars preparing for the games, 59. "We will seize this opportunity to step up our can paign for a sports lottery." said Yasutaka Matsudaira, bead of the Japanese delega-There were virtually daily disappointments in the two week games. Japan lost the men's 4-400 metre relay, the final track event, for the first time since 1978 after a bungled baton change.

Only the Japanese men's volleyball team saved some national bonour by rallying from two sets down to beat

China for their first crown

since 1982.

Japan had boped to overtake South Korea and Matsudaira tried to put a brave face on the medals defeat. He described the gap between the Japanese and Koreans as A group of sports fanatic legislators have been pushing for a soccer lottery which could earn more than one billion dollars a year for the Japanese Olympic Commit-

Despite its economic superpower status, Japan spends little on its sporting elite. It does not even have a

*China and South Korea have national training centres. Considering the handwe bave done fairly well," said Matsudaira.

Japan lost its Asian Games number-one spot at New De-

Ibi in 1982 and the country was overtaken by South at Seoul in 1986. In Beijing in 1990, Japan's 38 gold medals paled before 183 for China and 54 for South Korea.

A judo team, beefed up by three world champions, spearheaded Japan's national hopes. Japan won eight titles in the sport it invented, including five for the men. South Korea won seven judo

The Japanese sports of karate made its Asian Games debut with the host nation

Japan also won the baseball title. But one of the bitterest ironies for organisers was that the climax to Japan's professional baseball season beat Asia's premier sporting event in the television ratings.

Jordan Times Tel: 667171

FURNISHED SUPER DELUXE APARTMENT FOR RENT A 200-square-metre ground floor apartment, consisting of three bedrooms, including one master, two bathrooms, an 80-square-metre salon, telephone, central heating, separate garage. Location: Um Thaina, beside Habiba Supermarket, Abu Al

Nawas Street, Fuad Abu Zir Building. Suitable for a diplomatic mission, or companies or establishments.

The British Council

We would like to congratulate the following people who have passed exams awarded by the University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate:

CERTIFICATE OF PROFICIENCY ASMA AL-HAYARI

FIRST CERTIFICATE IN ENGLISH

Samia Breagth Anna Buren Hanady Al-Qudah Shireen Al-Otaibi Christian Savard Hassan Azizieh

Salah Qandeel Mufida Hasan Basem Ghuneim Mohamad Masri Areen Al-Rurdi

Mrs Margaret Hanson, wife of the Director General of the British Council, will be presenting the certificates at the British Council, Amman.

People who are interested in taking preparation courses for these high-level exams, please contact the British Council on 27th, 28th, 29th and 30th November 1994.

registered in England as a charity no 209131

For information pls. call tel. 675595, 861989. NEW FURNISHED APARTMENT FOR RENT

Top of Wasfi Tal Street (Gardens) from SAFE-WAY side. Accessible to all services (three bedrooms, sitting room, two bathrooms, bal-

Call on tel: 676897

INTERNATIONAL MARKETING ORGANISATION SEEKS QUALIFIED SECRETARY

Excellent command of English, computer and office management skills are a must. A college degree (U.S. or British) is preferable. with a minimum of 3 years working experience.
Please contact Tel. 607607 ext. 214 for an appointment. Resume (C.V.) is required.

NOOR AL HUSSEIN FOUNDATION The Jubilee School Immediate Job Vacancies

English teachers for secondary classes. Applicants should have:

1. B.A. in English with an average of very good or excellent.

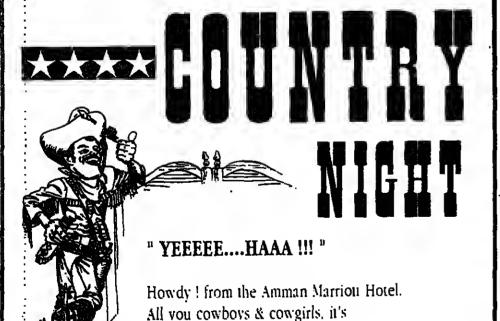

Minimum 3 years experience in teaching.

Experience in dealing with secondary students. Bilingual applicants are preferred.

Those interested should apply in person at the Jubilee School -Abdoun, For more information please contact Mrs. Eman Maihas Tel. 864940 or 827150

THE 0122

ing acct

COUNTRY WESTERN NIGHT

here at the Amman Marriott Hotel So pull yer boots on and join us at 7:30p.m. on October 21st for a night of country music, dancing, good ole' down

Home American Cookin and of course all the beer you can drink for ONLY JD 17.000 per person at our SPORTS BAR.

Schumacher celebrates F1 return by winning European Grand Prix

JEREZ DE LA FRON-TERA, Spain (AFP) — Michael Schumacher celebrated his return to Formula One with a crushing victory over Brirish rival Damon Hill in the European Grand Prix here Sunday.

Schumacher, at the wheel of the Benetton-Ford. finished 25sec clear of Hill in the Williams-Renault. Finn Mike Hakkinen came a distant third in the McLaren-Peugeot.

Suspended for the last two races, after ignoring a black flag at the British Grand Prix, Schumscher made an imperious return - dominating the race and increasing his lead in the world chmpionship from one 10 five

Hiseighth win of the season, which follows a public bitter Hill, branding him a "little man" who was "never a number one driver," will also give Schumacher a clear psychological advantage for the last two events of the season.

Nigel Mansell's race was a write-off, ending in the gravel bed on lap 51 after a protracted early pit-stop had cost the 1992 world champion him more than half a minute, and

COVENTRY (R) — Former

world 10,000 metres chantpion Liz McColgan repeated Sonday accusations that some of her British teammates were taking drugs hur added the majority of the team were

"There's a very, very small percentage, the handful are tarnishing us all," McColgan

Run, her first major race for

Earlier British Sunday

newspapers quoted McColgan saying "a lot more people" on the British team were taking drugs while the au-

"The public and the kids

thorities turned hlind eye.

Said Sunday after victory in the 10-km Great Midland

-18 months

Instead of helping his teammate Hill, Mansell, who returned from Indycar for the last three races of the season. ended up fighting just to 1ry and reach the points - and his efforts cost him a one-way trip to the gravel.

Despite his subsequent de-fear. Hill had made a dream start, tearing past Schumacher in pole position 10 hil the first bend in front.

The two men soon left the rest behind to fight their own private battle in relative peace and quiet.

After half a dozen laps, the pair were still only separated by a single second, but the yawning gap between the Englishman and third-placed Heinz Harald Frentzen was already a whopping 17sec. Frentzen's Sauber Mercedes was a thorn in the side of the early pursuers - the German's car hogging the track and preventing any of the half a dozen backed up behind it from overtaking.

First Mansell tried and failed, then Rubens Barrichello nipped in front of the 41-year-old, but fared no better. Gerhard Berger, Eddie Irvine, Johnny Herbert and Hakkinen were all world champion I had to have taken a substance," McColgan said Sunday.

"A lot of athletes are scared to speak out. But it's time we stood up and shouted that we don't need drugs to be the hest," McColgan said.

how many times I have heen tested. Let's publicise all the negatives, not just the few random, out-of-competition testing. Offenders should be

'don't come hack.'

"We should have more

"I want everyone to know

wings. Martin Brundle's grand prix ended after only seven laps when the Peugeor engine on his McLaren overheated and he was forced to retire. Schumacher made his first pit-stop on lap 15 and a turning point in the race came just three laps later, when Hill came in for fuel and fresh

The Williams-Renault crew took only two seconds more than the Benetton mechanics had a few minutes earlier, but it was enough to cost Hill his lead — the Englishman watching in dismay as he headed down the exit lane and Schumacher's blue and green Benetton roared

After 20 laps, Schumacher had edged five seconds clear. By the 30-lap stge, when the German had successfully negotiated a stretch of traffic. that gap had more than doubled to 12sec.

The lead changed back briefly on the 33rd lap, when Schumacher made a second stop, only for Hill to return to the pits the following lap. The two trips cancelling each other out, Schumacher was more 13sec clear over Hill with half of the race run.

Frenizen's leammate Andrea de Cesaris, who had blocked Schumacher earlier in the race and obliged the German 10 shove his way pasi. then kept Hill at bay for a couple of laps — costing the Englishman nearly 10sec.

With nearly two thirds of the race gone, it was already all over. Hill was almost half minute adrift and only mechanical failure or a mishap was going to stop Schumacher from taking charge of the championship.

Il didn'i happen, and even after a third pii-stop. Schumacher still returned with a 15sec lead over Hill.

Further back, Hakkinen was scrapping with the Jordan Harts of Barrichello and Irvine for thrid place, Frentzen having eventually vielded for a pil slop.

The last podium place went to Hakkinen.

Mansell, who admitted being at fault when he spun out, said: "It was an interesting day, but I'm a bit disappointed." He said the car had not been the same after an early knock with Barrichello had damaged his

Huber beats Pierce

FILDERSTADT, Germany (AFP) - German teenager Anke Huber beat defending champion Mary Pierce of France 6-4, 6-2 Sunday to win the women's $400,000

The first set was won from the baseline, with the extra power and precision coming from the 19-year-old German. Huber immediately seized the initiative in the second, dictating the pace of the rallies at will, and often catching the Frenchwoman off-guard with a sudden Huber said: "At times, I

Pierce, who hadn't dropped a set all tournament but committed a string of unforced errors in the final, said: "I've no excuses, Anke played very well."

"I hit a lot of winners down the line, and my backhand was good. And I was changing the speed of the game -

Ivanisevic downs Chang, takes Seiko Super title

TOKYO (R) — Goran Iva-nisevic clinched his second title of the year and secured a place for the season-ending $3 million world championships in Frankfurt when he powered aside 1989 French Open champion Michael Chang in the final of the Seiko Super indoor Sun-

The 10p seed from Croatia. who bad never made it past the semifinal stage in his last three appearances here, was in devastating form against the sixth-seeded American, breaking him in the seventh game of the first set and third ame in the final to win through 6-4 6-4 in 76 minutes. World number tune Chang gave his many Japanese fans cause to cheer as he doggedly chased after every single ball and pounded in countless beavy first serves.

But Ivanisevic, who fell in the first round of the U.S. open and last week's Australian Indoor, unleashed his booming serve- and-volley game mixed with blistering cross-court winners and consistent return of serves to ultimately deny Chang his sixth title of the season.

"I didn't expect I'd be even close to winning this tournameni. I don't know how I got my tennis together this week after falling at the U.S. Open and Australian Indoor. It's a miracle," Ivanisevic said.

Both players agreed the deciding factor in today's battle was Ivanisevic's ability to bammer returns from the back of the court.

"He was pretty solid off the ground. I thought he'd have missed a little more. If he's up a hreak and holding serve easily, be can really go for his shots — he hit winners off my first serve, which is a little bit frustrating," Chang seeing off a very in-form Auasked how Guns N'Roses"

Goran Ivanisevic

putting in slices - which he didn't like," the top seed

Ivanisevic has looked every bit like the world's number two player throughout the week at this million-dollar event played on a fast carpet

He had little difficulty

stralian Indoor champion Richard Krajicek in the quarterfinals, and two times Wimbledon champion Stefan Edberg, who was looking for his third Seiko title, in the semifinal.

But maybe it's all in a song. The 23-year old croat was 'Welcome to the Jungle," which hlared out over the Tokyo Metropolitan Gymnasium when he walked ontothe court, helped psyche him up for the final. "A lot. This is my song

the champion simply to be hrought in. That would wipe out the problem totalare assuming that to become English F.A. considers foreigners' crackdown

McColgan repeats

drug accusations

iONDON (AFP) — The fu-ure of Scottish, Welsh and Irish players with English dubs was thrown into doubt

The English Football Association (F.A.) said it was considering extending UEFA rules on European club competitions to domestic matches, by regarding most players from other parts of the United Kingdom and the Re-public of Ireland as fore-

The UEFA rule permits only three foreigners in any European tie plus two "assimilated" players those who may have been bom outside England but have been with their current duh for five years, like Manchester United's Ryan Giggs. Such a change could transform the football face of the British Isles. English clubs' scouting networks stretch right across Scotland, Ireland and Wales.

Playing in England is consi-

Both vulnerable. South deals.
NORTH

9 5 2

KJa64

EAST

ARQJ10

whith West North East Pass 2 Pass
Pass 4 Pass
Pass 4 Pass
Pass 5 Pass
Opening lead: Three of Your mission, Mr. Phel

±86 7 Q t0 9 5 2 0 J 7 5

dered a natural progression for promising players from those countries

However, F.A. chief executive Graham Kelly has promised support for new regulations because he believes it would be a boost for the development of English players.

He said: "We believe there is a need to examine current regulations to determine if it would be advantageous to the English game and the production and progress of our own players to apply a similar classification to Europe."

Clubs are likely to resist changes fiercely, even though they would be introduced gradually over a three to five-year period. Manchester United boss Alex Ferguson said: "It would effectively close the door to some great talents. Where would the game bave been without people like George Best, Denis Law and Danny Blanchflower?"

at German tourney

change of tempo. was playing faster than Mary, and I even surprised myself."

Pierce fought off three match points hefore going down in an hour and twenty for life — not just two or fours years - and told "I would love blood testing suffer setback champions AC Milan fell 2-0 at bottom club Padova Sunday, and had Marcel Desailly sent off, as their fortunes

A loss to Inter Milan in the Parma lost 3-1 to Sampdoria, but still held on to the lead with As Roma, who were to play at Torino in Sunday's late match, in second spot.

Lalas, the first ever American to play in the Serie A, who opened the scoring on 23 minutes. Then Desailly, who scored in Milan's European Cup final win over Barcelona na in May, received his marching orders in the 36th minute for a second bookable offence.

took a further hlow.

first leg of the Italian Cup second round Wednesday was the first setback. Then UEFA deducted two points from their European Champions League tally after Casino Salzburg keeper Otto Konrad was hit by a half-full plastic bottle during Milan's

It was Padova's Alexei

GOREN BRIDGE

WHICH LOSER?

sasignment is relatively simple. You must decide what trick South, an expert player, lost at six spades. As usual, should you or any of your ream be caught in faulty analysis this department will disavow any knowledge of your activities to avoid the interest of the state of the

The auction might not have been scientific, but it was quite accurate. If you can count the tricks available to declarer, there are 12—five spades, five diamonds and the aces of hearts and clubs. However, there of hearts and clubs. However, there is, as an often happens, a fly in the cintment. Unless diamonds split evenly, and the opening lead makes that unlikely, the diamond suit is blocked and South will be able to collect only four diamond tricks. Can you resolve this dilemma?

Tel.: 634144

First, win the opening lead and draw trumps in three or four rounds, whatever it takes. This key play is to then clear the ace of hearts. To check on whether diamonds are 2-2 cash another high diamond. As you suspected, the sure splits 3-1 What ow?

If you concede a diamond you have simply reduced your tricks from 12 to 11 and the fulfilling trick is cowhere in sight. But see what happens if you lead a heart from dummy and instead of ruffing, you discard the offending diamond from hand!

You can win any return and to the property of the prop hand!

You can win any return, cross to dummy with your remaining diamond and cash the two long diamonds. Let's hope Mr. Phelps came up with the right solution. If not, he would do well to buy Bill Roca's How to Play a Bridge Hand, from which this problem is taken.

Tel.: 699238

2,000 free tickets to mark a unique anniversary KLM, the world's first airline, is 75 years old! And to mark the occasion, we're holding a unique compension. Offenne you the chance to turn your secret dream into reality. And offering a total of 2,000 free tickets to help

Original ideas for uniting people and cultures We're mysting people to submit original ideas which illustrate our theme: Bridging the World. It could be flying a team from a children's hospitul in Toronto to challenge a soccer ream in Barcelona. Or helping renovate a schoolmom in Africa. It could be letting a Russian child virtuoso play with a famous musician in New York, Or using KLM Cargo to fly endangered animals to a safe haven. It all depends on your creativity.

Ten star prizes

Tel.: 618274 - 618275

From the entires, an international jury, under the chairmanship of Ruud Lubbers, former prime minister of ELM's home country. The Netherlands, will choose the 10 most original ideas. And we'll turn them into reality. Not only by providing free air tickets or cargo capacity, but also by footing the bill for all travel and lodging expenses. And the runners-up will be given the air tickets necessary to turn their ideas into reality.

350 worldwide destinations

And where can your idea take place? Quite simply anywhere in the world served by KLM and its partner Northwest Airlines. Giving you more than 350 destinations where you can make your dreams come true.

Tel.: 675571

Just tell us - in no more than 750 words - what your idea is, when it should take place, and why you think it illustrates our theme. And send off your entry today to FLM Bridging the World Contest, PO Box 750, 1000 AT Amsterdam, The Netherlands, before November 15, 1994.

The Reliable Airline KLM

PHILADELPHIA Yusra, Safiyah Al Ömari and Mahmoud Hamidah..in Al Muhajer (Immigrant)

Shows: 12:30, 3:30, 6:15, 8:30, 10:30

Cinema

EITHER YOU LOVE OR LEAVE

Farouk Fishawi & Hanan Shawqi ... in:

PLAZA

Shows at 12:30, 3:30, 5:00, 6:30, 8:30, 10:30

CONCORD CONCORD "1" SPEED

Shows: 12:30, 3:30, 6:00, 8:15, 10:30 CONCORD "2"

> CRUSH Shows: 3:30, 5:15

"MARZOUK AND THE MAGIC LAMP" at 10 a.m. For reservation call tel: 618274-618275

AMMOUN THEATRE

Presents:

Children's theatre

Today & Everyday Abu Awwad in social com-

Nabil Al Mashini Theatre

BAG"

Nabil & Hisham'a Tel.: 62 Presents: The political satire: Al Salam Ya Salam

edy "PUNCTURED

Daily at 8:30 p.m. Saturday & Sunday is the theatre's holiday.

Rv Erik Rasmussen

Special to the Jordan Times

COPENHAGEN - "It is very important not to confuse fundamentalism with Islam.

They are two different things.

I am definitely not against

Islam, but see it is as a good and correct religion. In contrast. I would like fundamentalism to be stopped."

vice-minister for foreign affairs. Henrik Woehlk, told the Jordan Times in advance of his opening speech at the conference on "Investment to be convened today at the Hotel Jordan Inter-

Continental, under the auspices of His Royal Highness

Crown Prince Al Hassan Bin

At this conference, 30 prominent Danish industrialists will be meeting with leading Jordanian and Palestinian businessmen, ministers and decision-makers, in order to discuss investment and joint ventures in Jordan and the

In most western countries.

including Denmark, there is a growing fear of fundamental-ism's advance. This could make Danish businessmen nervous about investing in

Gaza and the West Bank in particular. However, in the view of the Danish vice-minister, investment and development are the best way to counter fundamentalism.

ists and other groups can create problems, and experience shows that they do so."

says Mr. Woehlk, "We know

"Of course, fundamental-

Palestinian self-rule areas.

and Business Opportunities.

This is what the Danisb

Danish minister holds

Islam in high esteem,

where terror or other things will interrupt the political process. It would be strange if this were not the case in view of the experience we have had with the Middle East conflict over the years.

think that the more investment and economic growth

that can be created in the West Bank and Gaza, the greater the chance that such activities will cease. Hopefully, the Palestinians will feel that Denmark and the international community are beginning to show interest in them and taking their prob-

Denmark bas a long bis-tory of trade with the Middle East. Today's conference bas been arranged by the Amman Chamber of Commerce

in cooperation with the Danish Foreign Ministry and the Confederation of Danish Industries. Some of the largest among the Danish industrial concerns participating in the conference are APV Danish

(water pumps). Leo Pharmaceutical Products. Ltd.

and F.L. Smidth & Co. (con-

In spite of the positive historical experience Denmark has in trading with the Mid-ole East, the fundamentalist wave is creating anxiety. One of the things being discussed in Danish business circles is

National Authority (PNA)

can stay in power, or whether fundamentalists might take crete plants).

lems seriously.

"But," be continues, "I

"because we see the fundamentalists advance in various places. It is a reality that the world must deal with. However, if we don't invest due to that fear, then we are actually facilitating the fundamentalist advance. It is a fact that fundamentalism flourishes best in conditions of poverty, just as we have seen in Egypt and

"Islam is a religion I respect." emphasises Mr. Woehlk, "but if we are speaking of fundamentalism, it is a different story. Clearly. there is fear that groups such as Jihad or Hamas might take power, but that should not stop us. Countering fundamentalism means, first and foremost, fostering develop-

One of the main topics on the agenda of the conference Turnkey Dairies, Grundfos on "Investment and Business Opportunities" is interna-tional aid for reconstruction in the Palestinian self-rule areas, which have suffered from 27 years of Israeli occupation, neglect and exploitation. In line with this, a main speaker at the conference will be Ahmad Qouria (Abu Alaa). As the PNA's whether the current lead-. minister of economy, industry and trade, he will address ership of the Palestinian the conference on the topic of "Investment Possibilities in the Palestinian Authority and the Role of the Private Sec-

Henrik Wohlk

As representatives for the private sector in Denmark, the 30 Danish industrialists presumably are very in-terested in the PNA's view of the private sector. Mr. Woehlk stresses the importance of his country's efforts in this respect: "Today Gaza and the West Bank are extremely poor areas: if they don't receive any aid, they will be left to the influence of various forces. It is obvious that fundamentalists will find a base. For this reason, we cannot wait for a total Middle East peace solution before

Mr. Woehlk expresses his country's wish for Syria to join the peace solution, but says, "Gaza, the West Bank and Jordan cannot wait for Syria. It is a question of investing in peace. The $2.18 billion to be financed by the World Bank and the European Union are quite simply an effort to secure peace in the whole region. Denmark wants to join in this efforts," concludes the minister.

Erik Rasmussen is a Danish free-lance journalist and heads the All Round News Agency in Copenhagen.

Five including mastermind of Mahfouz attack shot dead

CAIRO (Agencies) — Police killed five suspected Islamic militants in raids across Egypt, including the alleged mastermind of a plot to kill Nobel Prize-winning writer Naguib Mahfouz, police said

An Interior Ministry statement said seven other suspects were arrested in the Friday stabbing of Mr. Mahfouz. It said the attack was part of the campaign by Al Gamaa Al Islamiyah 10 destabilise Egypt through assassinations and explo-

The four other suspected radicals were shot dead Saturday night in arrest raids in southern Egypt, part of the battle between police and extremists seeking to topple the government and install Isla-

More than 430 people. mostly police and militants. have died in the extremists 21/2-year campaign of violence.

The alleged leader of the Mahfouz plot. Basem Mohammad Khalil Shaheen. was killed in a shootout with police Saturday night at a coffee shop in the Cairo suburb of 'Ain Shams, the ministry said. Shaheen had been given a three-year prison sentence in absentia in the 1990 assassination of anti-extremist writer and secular thinker Farag Foda. The ministry statement said the man who allegedly knifed Mr. Mahfouz was wounded in the gun battle, as was an innocent bystander. The 83-year-old Mahfouz. winner of the 1988 Nobel Prize for literature, was stabbed in the neck several times

By Cathy King

Special to the Jordan Times

Friday by a man the writer thought was approaching him to shake hands. The statement said the attempt to kill Mr. Mahfouz was the second in two days. It said two members of Shaheen's group, dressed as Gulf Arabs. went to Mr. Mahfouz's house Thursday to kill him, but he was not

The two would-be attackers had dressed in jellabas. loose-fining robes worn by Arab men, and red and white khafir scarfs to pass as admirers of Mr. Mahfouz from the Gulf. One carried a bouquet of flowers, the ministry said. Hiw Wife Atteval Allah condemned the attackers saving "it is even more deceitful" to carry a bouquet to kill someone. Police said the seven people arrested Sunday were members of Al Gamaa. Police trying 10 find the getaway car used in the attack set up checkpoints on roads out of Cairo on Saturday and detained 42 people. the official daily Al Jumhuriva reported Sunday.

Informed of the arrests. Mr. Mahfouz said Sunday from his hospital bed. "it's incredible, praise be to

"I did not think they would be arrested so fast." he

Two other attackers were arrested in 'Ain Shama and four other plotters were seized in raids elsewhere in Cairo. the statement said .-

Mr. Mahfouz underwent surgery and has been pronounced in good condition considering his age. He suffers from diabetes and is ear-

Awareness of value of water should be part of education, workshop hears sponsibility for the attack. Mr. Mahfouz often crilicises the government and Islamic hardliners in a weekly newspaper column, and is an outspoken supporter of Arab-Israeli peace.

Egyptians have expressed outrage over the attack against one of the country's most popular figures, a diminutive man with trademark dark glasses and a regular at Cairo cafes for chats about literature.

But authorities have been at odds with him for years. In 1989, militants threatened him for his book The Children of Our Districi." in which he depicts God as a father and the prophets as his children. Authorities had banned the Egyptian human rights groups said the leader of Al Gamaa, the blind Sheikh Omar Abdul Rahman, issued a death sentence against Mr. Mahfouz for blasphemy.

They also say the writer was threatened with death after criticising Iran for its death sentence against British author Salman Rushdie, whose book "The Satanic Verses is considered by many Muslims as blasphe-

However, officials of Al Azhar. Egypt's most sacred Sunni Muslim mosque, and the mufti. Sheikh Mohammad Saved Tantawi. Egypt's highest religious figure. have condemned the attack against Mr. Mahfouz.

Some of Mr. Mahfouz's friends insist, his work was not the reason for his attack.

COLUMN

Publicity campaign begins for book by Pope

drums for an unasual literary event — the publication of a book by Pope John Paul II. With multimillion dollar contracts signed, publishing houses have a lot at stake. It has been timed to come out when Pope John Paul was visiting the United States, a trip cancelled because more time was deemed necessary for his recovery from hipreplacement surgery. Cros-sing The Threshold Of Hope, personal reflections by Pope John Paul on the papacy and the role of the church, will be presented Wednesday evening in Milan before going on sale in 20 languages the next day. Mondadori, the Pope's Italian publisher, announced that Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, one of the most influen-tial officials at the Vatican, will help introduce the book. along with papal spokesman Joaquin Navarro, who signed the contract for the book. Panaroma, a weekly newsmagazine in the Mondadori Group, Saturday published the first chapter, John Paul's reflections on the relationship between the Pope and God. He repeats the phrase he used at his formal installation as Pontiff 16 years ago this month, "do not be afraid," underlining his call to Roman Catholics to give themselves to the mysteries of their faith. The English-language rights to the book were sold to Random House, reportedly for $6 million. All royalties will go to a charity chosen by the Pope, Mondadori officials have said. Panorama said 20 million copies will be pubished of the book, 258 pages in the Italian version; It will sell in Italy for 25,000 lire, about $16.

Sisters steal grandma's savings

BOSTON (AP) - After spending most of her life. working two jobs to save $26,500, Beatrice Jones had it all planned: "I wanted to go on a nice trip around the world." Ms. Jones' two teenage granddaughters got to the thorities said. The girls allegedly stole the cash from a bedroom safe and took a lavish trip of their own — to Disney World. Along with a 13-year-old friend, they blew all but $8,000 in Orlando, Fla., on an expensive hotel. restaurants and a three-day shopping spree, authorities said. "I'm very much upset with them. I do everything in the world for those kinds, and to think they would do this to me, I can't believe it." Ms, Jones, 63, said Friday. One. sister, 15, and the friend are charged with grand larceny. The other sister, 14, is charged with grand theft. They were not identified because of their age. The sisters' father, Deron Jones, said he wants the courts not the family - to deal with them. "If they got away with taking $26,500, when they were 14 and 15 years old, they may grow up to be bank robbers," he said. The girls remained in a juvenile detention centre in Orlando as authorities discussed how to bring them back to Massachusetts. Deron Jones, who lives with the girls and his mother in Boston, is reinctant to fly to Florida to get them. "If you had your life savings and it was blown in a three-day trip to Disney World, would you want to spend the rest of your life savings bringing the people back that blew it?" he asked. According to police, the sis-ters decided to run away last Saturday after their father hit the elder one with a belt. They broke into the safe and stole the money. After get-ting their friend, the girls went to the airport and bought tickets to Oriando on Northwest Airlines. Once there. They checked into the Embassy Suites Hotel near Disney World and paid cash in advance for a two-week stay. The girls were discovered Monday night when one of them got scared, called a friend and told her where they were. The friend in turn called their father, who contacted Florida anthorities. Beatrice Jones said she has not spoken with the girls since her son told her what they did, "I really don't want to talks with them," she

NEWS IN BRIEF

France urges UAE, Iran to negotiate dispute

ABU DHABI (AFP) - French Foreign Minister Alain Juppe urged the United Arab Emirates (UAE) and Iran on Sunday to hold direct negotiations to resolve a dispute over three strategic Gulf islands. Mr. Juppe, who is touring the Gulf. was replying to a question on France's position towards a UAE call for international arhitration on the dispute that has marred relations between Iran and its Gulf Arab neighbours. "I believe the UAE and Iran should enter a direct dialogue to solve their territorial dispute in accordance with international law." he said. "There should be no unilateral solution to the problem." The UAE and Iran held negotiations in Abu Dhabi in 1992 on the dispute over the islands of Abu Musa and Greater and Lesser Tunbs. But they collapsed three days later when Iran refused to discuss the Tunbs. Gulf Arab states have strongly backed the UAE and urged Iran to accept international arbitration on the tiny islands, which control the entrance of the Gulf through which one-fifth of the world's oil exports pass.

Paper owned by Saddam's son defends CNN

BAGHDAD (R) - Iraq's most influential newspaper Babel attacked its government counterpart Al Jumhouriva on Sunday for accusing Cable News Network (CNN) of being a Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) underdog. "We were surprised vesterday with an article in the newspaper Al Jumbouriya branding all CNN employees CIA agents, the newspaper published by President Saddam Hussein's eldest son, Uday, said in a front-page article. It said what Al Jumhouriya had published was not "permissible." Al Jumhouriya accused the network on Saturday of bias in reporting the latest crisis in the Gulf. It said: "Once again the reality of American television networks, particularly CNN was exposed. They are nothing but a specialised apparatus under the supervision of the Central Intelligence Agency. Babel said a CNN correspondent was the target of a bostile campaign from the U.S. administration during the 1991 Gulf war over Kuwait for reports reflecting the viewpoints of the Iraqi government and people. It did not

Iran has highest number of road accidents

TEHRAN (AFP) — Iran has the highest number of road accidents in the world even though there are only three million cars in circulation. Transport Minister Akbar Torkan said Sunday. Mr. Torkan told the official news agency IRNA that there were 37,000 serious accidents a year and about 120 accidents per 10,000 vehicles, 10 times the average in other parts of the world. He did not give a figure for the number of people who die each year on the roads, but other sources have put the number at 2,000. The minister blamed careless driving, faulty cars and dangerous roads as the main causes of accidents in Iran. Most cars on the roads are about 14 years old and drivers are often satisfied with only a bare minimum of repairs. Mr. Torkan called for stricter penalties for violating highway rules.

Iran accuses U.S. of causing death of deputy

TEHRAN (AFP) - Iranian leaders and the press have accused the United States of intentionally causing the death by cancer of a member of Iranian parliament. Hussein Shahrudi, chairman of parliament's economic and finance subcommittee and an influential clergyman, died last week in a hospital in London at the age of 44. He was refused entry to the United States when he arrived at Washington D.C. airport in April 1993 along with other members of an Iranian delegation to attend a joint meeting of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and World Bank. He said later that be was arrested and suffered a 30-hour ordeal which inleuded "harassment, humiliation and psychologically damaging" a treatment at the hands of U.S. immigration officers. In a message of condolences, Iranian leader Avatollah Ali Khamenei said Shahrudi had fallen ill after returning from the United States. Iran bas been more direct with some suggesting that Shahrudi's "suspicious" death was caused sby the "trauma he suffered" during his detention. The conservative daily Resalat accused the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) of injecting "cancercausing" agents into the clergyman's body. "Shahrudi has been a victim of the criminal aims of the United States. No doubt, he has been martyred through the injection of a cancer-causing substance by the CIA," it said. The paper called on the government to pursue the case "in order to show the ugly face" of the United States to the world.

Experts review shortfalls and gains of services for disabled women, family role

AMMAN (J.T.) — The U.N. Economic Commission for Western Asia's (ESCWA) regional seminar on the role of the family in integrating disabled women into society opened Sunday with two addresses underlining deficiencies as well as achievements in services that cater for disabled women in the cess Majda Ra'd Ben Zeid asked what the family can do to integrate disabled female children first into their families and subsequently as women into the larger environment of society.

In support ESCWA Deputy Executive Director Thoraya Obaid said that disability affects women and girls more seriously not only when they are themselves disabled but also as primary caretakers of disabled family members, namely as mothers or wives of disabled individuals.

But Dr. Thoraya noted the achievements, including an increase in social action by private sector and nongovernmental groups, parti-cularly women's groups, and also an increase in public awareness of the capabilities and the needs of disabled persons at the regional level. The three-day seminar, which is being beld at the Royal Cultural Centre, will end tomorrow. The seminar aims at providing a forum for disabled women and experts to assess the nature and extent of social integration of Arab disabled women and to draw up action-oriented guidelines for promoting their integration into society. Included in the seminar will be substantive following topics:

- The extent and nature of the problem of disabled women and children in the ESCWA region, with particular emphasis on their socio-economic characteristies and the level of their social integration.

 Childhood disability and the role of the family in terms of prevention, early intervention and rehabilitation. - The role of grass-roots non-governmental organisations in community-hased rebabilitation.

Seminar participants in-clude disabled women and men, families of disabled women, regional and international experts on the issue, representatives of major NGOs in the region, and United Nations Interagency Task Force members.

The seminar is being held in fulfillment of Economic and Social Council Resolution 1991/21 on disabled women, which recommended that focal points in the United Nations system for the advancement of women and disability issues (including ESCWA and UNICEF) cooperate more closely in their efforts to give continuing attention to issues involving women with disabili-

Side events to demonstrate disabled women's capabilities and creativity will also take place during the three-day seminar. These include a concert by Jordanian Blind Girl Musicians, an exhibit of artis-tic work by disabled persons, and a charity bazaar organised by Jordanian NGOs for presentations, discussions disabled persons.

and demonstrations in the form of plenary and working group sessions covering the AMMAN - Appreciation of the value of water, a scarcity in the country, should be integrated into the school curricula and impressed upon children at an early age. This was one of the focal points of a ten-day workshop that opened here Sunday. Workshop, entitled "Increased Awareness of Water in Jordan", is coorganised by the Royal Society for the conservation of Nature (RSCN) and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID).

The plenary session addresses, given by RSCN Education Committee President Abla Ayoub, Minister of State and Minister of Education Abdul Raouf Rawabdeh and USAID Director Tom Oliver, concentrated on the importance of public awareness of environmental and water issues through education. Ms. Ayoub said that while "environmental catastrophes occur every day, and industrialisation bas contributed to the deterioration of the environment creating a universal problem, Jordan's biggest problem is the scarcity of

She added that this problem was not confined to the Kingdom, but burdens neighbouriog countries as well. Mr. Rawabdeh stressed the need for worldwide collaboration to overcome political border demarcations to enable the problems of water and the environment to be confronted. "Otherwise the ship will sink," he said.

Mr. Oliver spoke of joint RSCN/USAID efforts on water conservation issues, involving a school club programme and the distribution of publications to raise

"We are looking for creative ways to reach students," he said.

Secretary General of the Ministry of Water and Irrigation Mohammed Bani Hani, who delivered an introductory lecture "water issues in Jordan and the importance of awareness programmes,' told the Jordan Times that this was "the first time officials have tried to bridge water problem via the public."

He emphasised the significance of using voluntary awareness.

"The clubs are located in most areas of Jordan, reaching out further afield than the Ministry of Water. They try to convince people (of the gravity of the water problem), as opposed to the ministry which issues instructions. Linkage between these clubs and public activities, like schools, women's associations, youth clubs and mosque and church preachers to spread information, eases the ministry's task. "The voluntary nature of the clubs means that the success of the project is dependent on choice. Also, they feel the importance of the project which will guarantee its success," said Dr. Beni

"People do not attach the necessary interest or attention to the problem of water. No-one is aware of the gap between supply and demand until they have to face it. This awareness drive is to preempt that occuring," be added.

The RSCN workshop is the second stage of a three-part project financed by USAID and advised by Mona Jerisar and Mona Habib of the Washington-based Green Com., a sub-agency of USAID, RSCN official Khulood Tubaishat told the Jordan Times.

The first stage included surveys involving the public;

the data collected displayed widespread unawareness of the importance of water conservation, she said,

As a result, the second phase "aims to deepen understanding of the problem, to increase the role of the individual and to stress the importance of participation in solving the problem,' Ms. Tubaishat added. She said that the work-shop's seminars would cover water, sources, quality and uses, awareness and rationacial and economic impact. laws, regulations and water sector institutions.

The third part will include eight workshops to be beld in various districts of the Kingdom to train RSCN club supervisors int he use of educational material and activities directly related to the environment, she explained.

According to official sources, reasons for the Kingdom's lack of water are numerons. — Over 91 per cent of the country's land mass is classified as desert or semi-arid land: — the sharing of water sources with neighbouring countries, Iraq, Israel, Saudi Arabia and Syria, is regarded to be on unfavourable terms for Jordan.

- The population growth rate of 3.6 per cent is one of the fastest in the Middle East: and

- Despite having one of the lowest water consumption rates in the world, approximately 198 cubie metres per capita annually. existing supplies cannot sustain current consumption

The rest of the workshop will be held daily, excepting Friday, starting at 8.30 a.m. at the RSCN headquarters in the Jubeiha area until Oct. 25. The workshop is open to the public.

Somaliland airport seized by troops — president

NAIROBI (R) — The president of self-declared Somaliland republic said his troops seized control of Hargeisa airport on Sunday and were chasing clan militiamen towards the border with Etbiopia.

Aid officials said 13 foreign aid workers were flown from Hargeisa on Sunday to the Red Sea state of Djibouti as a protective measure after sporadic shelling of the city.

"We took the airport at 10 a.m. (0700 GMT). Our troops have cleaned it out and it is now completely in our hands," President Mobammad Ihrahim Egal told Reuters by telephone from Hargeisa.

"The operation to take the airport started at 7:30 a.m. (0430 GMT) and by nine (0600 GMT) we had them on the run."

The 'republic of Somaliland" in the northeast was declared in May 1991 but has failed to win international recognition. The fighting on Saturday and Sunday was the worst there in months.

Clan militiamen had allowed Hargeisa airport to operate for the past year but exacted "taxes" from arriving flights until Mr. Egal ordered bis troops to surround it more than a month ago. his forces to attack militiamen bolding the airport for the past year after rebels attacked government troops on the road to Berbera on Saturday and one militia commander was killed and four soldiers wounded.

He said a woman and a family of three civilians including a child were killed and several people were wounded on Saturday when militia gunners dug in at the airport shelled Hargeisa.

Aid workers said it also come under sporadic shelling on Sunday morning but the, city was calm and the government appeared to have the Mr. Egal said he ordered upper band in fighting for the

Asked about casualties in the assault be ordered, Mr. Egal said: "Fortunately there are not many, if any. They ran away but took the technicals (battlewagons) with them so we still have to dis-

"They are now heading for the border with Ethiopia and we are chasing them and will get them. This has removed the last thorn in our side and people in Hargeisa are abso-intely jubilant," be added.

Mr. Egal said 300 rebels controlling the airport for the. past year had refused to surrender it to government forces and he believed there were up to 200 there shortly before it was taken. Aid workers told Reuters

I3 foreign staff from Hargeisa were taken on two flights to Djibouti from Kalabaydb airstrip west of Hargeisa which aid agencies bad been using for the past

"It was a protective measure. The situation was not immediately threatening to our operations," an official

Under Mr. Egal, Somaliland refused to accept U.N. troops last year to ensure security and bas managed to escape much of the militia conflicts and lawlessness plaguing the rest of Somalia since the fall of Somali dictator Mohammad Siad Barre in

ROME (AP) — The Vaticas and an Italian publishing house have begun beating the

porty of Pales Co

kin

Fasition

mrict, its